

DEAD INDIAN HAS RENEWED APPEAL AS CAMPING SITE

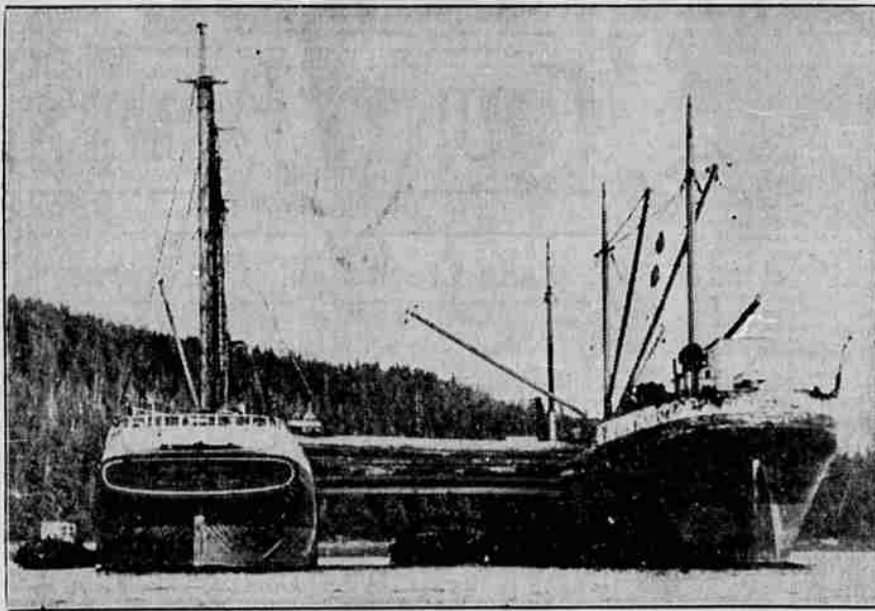

By Bernice Kunzman.

Many items have appeared in the Tribune about different summer resorts and vacation spots in southern Oregon, but none has been written recently in appreciation of one of the oldest and best known of them all. For over 50 years the pioneers of this valley and their descendants have been traveling the road to Dead Indian Soda Springs, and the large crowd which spent the fourth on the beautiful old camp ground showed that this is an increasingly favorite spot.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Tyrrell (both of whom are children of pioneer parents) have purchased the camp ground and have a concession to it from the government, just as similar concessions have been obtained by others at Lake of the Woods, Diamond lake and many other places have been secured. At great expense to themselves the Tyrrells have made outstanding improvements for the comfort and convenience of the public, among which are running water piped throughout the camp ground, the installation of sanitary toilets, providing large tables with two benches and a most practical little cast topped cook stove (for which plenty of split wood is supplied) at each camping spot and in the space allotted for picnicking; clearing away underbrush and debris, and placing garbage cans and digging a huge pit for garbage disposal. To reimburse themselves for all this expense a small fee for each car of picnickers or campers is charged, and the fact that people appreciate these conveniences was shown by the number who took advantage of them on the fourth. Fifty cars were registered in the pay camp ground and about 25 more cars were parked in the lovely free camp just below, so that close to 275 people spent the day at Dead Indian.

Of course, the wonderful soda spring, which is located about one-half mile from the main camp, is one of the chief attractions and the trail was lined all day long with people going and coming—bearing lemons

GOLD CARGO NEARS RECOVERY IN ALASKA WATERS

Salvage vessels are shown over the S. S. Islander, wrecked 30 years ago near Juneau, Alaska, with a number of prospectors and their gold aboard. It is believed the vessel contains a fortune although the amount is indefinite. The two hulks are anchored above the wreck which has been moved by tidal action from 300 feet of water to less than 50 feet. (Associated Press Photo) and sugar on their way up and full of soda water coming back! There couldn't have been a happier, more orderly crowd of people anywhere in Jackson county on the nation's birthday this year.

The latest and largest improvement is the fine 60x30 cement swimming tank which is located in a picturesque outdoor amphitheater just across Dead Indian creek from the main grounds. The pool is so new, in fact, that the water had just been turned into it the day before the fourth and hadn't had a chance to warm in the sun, so that the many bathers found their swim a most invigorating sport. From now on the clean, clear water will be warm and very enjoyable. Dozens of people complimented the Tyrrells very highly on this splendid addition to their equipment—for their place can now be termed a pleasure resort, whereas it has previously been sought chiefly for its healthful and restful qualities.

All these factors were considered by the girl scout committee when they decided to buy the beautiful permanent site for the girl scout camp, which is located about a quarter mile up Little Butte creek from the concession. The drinking water is pure and cold; the objectives for hikes in every direction are interesting and numerous; there is an inexhaustible supply of nature study material from the most delicate of orchids to the grand old firs and pines, and besides this the fishing is good. Practically every man and woman, and even boys and girls who fished for any length of time brought in good sized strings of fish, the best bait being grasshoppers and barnacles.

For the information of those who haven't tents or do not desire to "camp out," it might be well to add that cottages (with good beds and stoves) are available and meals can be had; also there is a little store where supplies can be purchased. You will be courteously welcomed at any time at Dead Indian and everything possible for your comfort and pleasure will be cheerfully done.

We can assure you that a vacation spent up there in that invigorating mountain air will be a profitable and happy one.

JACKSONVILLE H. E. MEETS WEDNESDAY

MERCHANTS WILL STUDY NEW BANK SERVICE CHARGES

the cost, as it has been figured out on a scientific basis."

Under the system devised by the southern Oregon bankers, merchants are to be allowed checks in proportion to their balance in the bank. Folders were distributed explaining the costs as follows:

"On all accounts showing normal activity in deposits, out-of-town checks, etc., the depositor will be privileged to issue on free check, or other 'debit,' for each $10 of average balance maintained in his account during the month; all other checks, etc., to be charged for at the rate of 3 cents per item.

"Should the depositor's balance fall below $50 during any current month, he will be privileged to issue 10 free checks, but it will be necessary for the bank to apply a service charge of 50 cents for cost of maintaining the account.

"Accounts showing unusual activity in the depositing or cashing of checks, etc., especially in the matter of out-of-town checks, more commonly known as 'float,' which are collected at a considerable expense to the bank, will be subject to a special analysis. Should the analysis indicate the account is being carried by the bank at a loss, the bank must be reimbursed accordingly for the actual loss sustained."

Service Fees Stated.

For out-of-town checks to a non-customer, the banks will charge a service fee for cashing them. The rate will be five cents for checks up to $25, ten cents up to $50, and 20 cents from $50 to $100, with a flat rate of 20 cents per hundred thereafter.

The analysis used by the banks, Mr. Harder explained, is to take the average daily ledger balance, deduct 10 per cent reserve, figure the interest at a rate of 3 per cent, and from this latter amount the charges for check transactions are deducted. Should the amount of the check charges be less than the interest

MOTHER ACCUSED ABUSING FLOCK

PORTLAND, Ore., July 10—(UP)—Five children of Mrs. Bertha Kiersey, ranging from a babe in arms to seven-year-old Doris, today were under the care of the Boys and Girls Aid society after investigators learned the mother had neglected and abused the children.

One of the tots, Leonard, 3, was found tied to a bed in the Kiersey home at Seaside, Harry Kemmerer, Seaside policeman, said the lad's left arm was lashed to the bedpost—his right arm tied under him.

Mrs. Kiersey explained the punishment was intended to cure Leonard of sucking his thumb.

Kemmerer said the children often were left at home without food. Two of the children required medical aid here. The baby also was turned over to the society by court order, but was remitted to Mrs. Kiersey's care for a short time.

It is considered far more chic for a hostess to know wines, how to replace her cellar and fine talk about the choice of vintages for her guests than to be able to rattle off the contents of a dozen or more cocktails. This wine education of French women, incidentally, takes a great burden off the men of the household.

The success of Madame Fould's reception at which the guests drank only natural sparkling and still wines while eating sandwiches and pastry, indicates the decidedly new social trend here.

PARIS HOSTESS BANS COCKTAILS

PARIS—(UP)—Guests at a recent smart afternoon reception arrived forewarned that they would not be served cocktails.

The news was conveyed to them on engraved invitations, in the lower left corner. The word "cocktails" was struck off in red ink and the words "French Wines" underlined in the same color.

The guests, who included a large majority of Parisian notables, knew what to expect, and it was noted that the warning only served to encourage them. Madame Achille Fould, wife of the former minister of agriculture, author of the invitation, was the hostess. Her initiative confirms a recent radio broadcast from Bordeaux in which it was pointed out that society women have dropped the cocktail habit and interested themselves in French wines as much as humbler housewives.

RECORD OF PEGGY JOYCE IS BROKEN

LONDON—(UP)—Peggy Hopkins Joyce had better put up the banners again.

An Englishwoman has beaten her matrimonial record with a present total of six nuptial knots—and she is still young-looking at 52.

Mrs. George Mrett Stevens, who lives in the New Forest, has been wed six times. Five of her husbands died, and the sixth has gone abroad "to make a fortune."

Out of her varied marital experience, Mrs. Stevens opines that husbands are invariably jealous of a previous spouse; they don't mind how much trouble they cause a wife, and after the first few months of married life they cease entirely to display any interest in their wife's clothes or appearance.

On the other hand, Mrs. Stevens has found husbands to be loyal and good companions. She says: "They may criticize their wives from morn to night, but let someone even hint a disparagement and they are up in arms immediately."
