

BLOCK BOOKING SYSTEM JUNKED BY FILM FIRMS

HOLLYWOOD, July 12. (UP)—Motion picture distributors of 10 major studios today came to the rescue of theater owners faced with ruin through boycotts and censorship of films and broke up their system of "block bookings" on all films made prior to July 15.

The exhibitors, who for years has been at a disadvantage in his dealings with the distributor, will benefit greatly through the plan. Should local censor boards or church groups demand he not show a certain picture, the exhibitor for the first time will be able to decline to take it under contract.

WOULD DEED BANK PROPERTY TO C. P.

A petition was filed in circuit court yesterday by the state bank examiner in charge of the liquidation of the State Bank of Central Point, in exchange for cancellation of unpaid claims amounting to $1830.75, held by the city of Central Point.

CLOTHING AND FOOD NEEDED SAYS CHURCH

The Foursquare commissary is receiving calls for clothing and food by needy families that it is unable at this time to supply. Any one having on hand any cast-off garments or shoes or any surplus garden produce or fruit will be doing a real and timely service for the needy ones by bringing it to the Foursquare church, pastor's residence, 236 North Bartlett, or phone 301-R-4, and a car will call for the donation, which will be distributed in the right homes where most needed without a cent of service charge.

FIRST LADY GIVES ADMIRERS SLIP ON ARRIVAL IN WEST

Nancy Cook, which the United Air lines said she adopted for the trip, had proved fruitless for a crowd of admirers turned out at every airport. Except at Salt Lake City their hopes of a smile and a word of greeting from the first lady were doomed to disappointment.

At each airport she either kept to the cabin of the regular passenger plane or was shielded by attendants. Arriving here at 6:35 a. m. she was met by Miss Hickok and drove to the hotel and walked through the lobby. While their followers waited for them to return, the pair stepped out another exit and into a waiting automobile, said to be Mrs. Dall's.

Hint Tahoe Destination. Reports were current that they left for Lake Tahoe, where Miss Hickok was said to have taken a summer home, where they were to meet Mrs. Dall. Others said Mrs. Roosevelt's daughter had driven into Sacramento earlier in the day, while a third version was that they were headed for the "arrowhead D" ranch of Mr. and Mrs. William E. Dana, where Mrs. Dall is establishing a divorce residence.

However, Mrs. Roosevelt told Miss Althea McMaisters, stewardess of the transcontinental plane and reportedly the only one to talk with her while in the air, that the first lady planned a leisurely trip down Sacramento valley.

How to Foll Cramps.

To the Editor: More than 75 years ago I read in the London Lancet, the leading medical and surgical journal in England, if not in the world, an article by an eminent surgeon near a famous summer resort, calling attention to the sad loss of life among young people by drowning. He said that from his observation it was chiefly caused by fainting occasioned by cramps in the legs. The sufferer begins to thrash around in the water and call for help and quickly swallows water and is gone.

As a remedy this surgeon said in substance that it was a well known fact that a very slight movement of the arms would keep one's body afloat; and then by retaining presence of mind the sufferer could work the cramp off, if in the legs, for instance. The tendency of the cramp was to draw one's foot out in a straight line with the leg.

On June 25, 1894, I had an opportunity to test that remedy. In company with Henry Hill, a fellow prisoner on the Oregonian, with a group of other young men, we entered the Willamette river about the foot of Market street, with the avowed intention of swimming across. It was not long, however, before all but Hill and I had turned back. Then Hill said, "Suppose we go across," to which I agreed.

It was not long before I was swimming slowly. Then Hill said: "Are you tired?" "No," I replied; "I have cramps in both legs, and am trying to work them out by using all the power of my mind to pulling my toes up towards my knees." I succeeded, as the result of the method suggested by the surgeon, as above noted.

Hill and I rested a few minutes, then entered the water and swam back to our clothes.

That was before the days of bathing suits. GEORGE H. HUNES, Secretary Pioneer Assn. Portland, Ore., July 10, 1934.

CHAMBER COMMITTEE WILL SETTLE POLICY ON BANKING CHARGES

Members of the Ashland chamber of commerce committee will meet in Medford this evening with the Jackson county chamber of commerce committee to decide on the plan for merchants of the two communities to follow, in regard to charges adopted the first of the month by the southern Oregon banks.

According to Wm. F. Isaacs, chairman of the local committee, the Medford members, including himself, Fred Heath, Sr., and N. B. Franklin, met last evening and voted that the merchants should make the same charges on out-of-town checks as do the bankers. They agreed, however, that they would make no charges on local checks.

This plan will be recommended to the Ashland men at the meeting in the chamber of commerce building this evening. At the gathering here yesterday, the committee decided the above plan would avoid many complications necessary under a service charge system.

Fair Sizes

Smallest man in the world, guarded by tallest man in the world, visits smallest distillery bottling line in the world, a replica of the largest bottling line in the world. The first is Capt. Werner Ritter, 21 years old, 18 inches tall, weighing 19 1/2 pounds. His towering bodyguard is Capt. Gilbert Reichert, 19 years old, more than eight feet tall, weighing 265 pounds. The locale is the miniature bottling line in the Hiram Walker Exhibit at A Century of Progress. The midget had difficulty in holding the miniature souvenir bottle aloft long enough for the camera man to catch the picture. Then he took it home to his pint-size sweetheart in the Mid-get Village.

PARALYSIS RUMOR HELD GROUNDLESS

In an effort to scotch a rumor that has been in circulation in Josephine county for several days, Dr. C. I. Drummond, county health officer, this morning issued an emphatic statement declaring there were no cases of infantile paralysis in Jackson county now, and had been none for more than 18 months.

Dr. Drummond was informed by the Josephine county health officer that there were no cases of the disease in that county.

Exact origin of the groundless rumor is unknown. Ten days ago inquiry was made of the state health department, if a quarantine was to be invoked at the California-Oregon state line. The Salem department immediately denied any such intentions on the ground it was not necessary.

People are requested to report to the authorities immediately the name and address of any informant, telling them of the existence of infantile paralysis. This will aid in locating the gossip, and stopping the rumor.

POSTAL EMPLOYEES TO HOLD SALEM MEETING

SALEM, Ore., July 12.—(AP) More than 100 postal employees were expected to meet here Saturday to attend the annual convention of the Oregon Rural Letter Carriers' association. Roy A. Anderson of Baker, president of the association, will preside at the one-day session.

W. G. Armstrong of Niles, Mich., national president of the organization, was expected to arrive here from Washington, D. C., Saturday, and was scheduled to make two addresses.

MEDFORD RESIDENTS RECEIVE $155,888 IN FEDERAL HOME LOAN

Home Owners' Loan corporation loans to residents of the city and county, to date, total $155,888, to 65 home owners, according to the records of the county clerk's office. The average loan is $2366.

The amount sum does not embrace any of the federal monies freed under the recovery program on agricultural loans, which include credit production, wheat acreage control, the hog-corn loans, or other federal projects.

The smallest home loan is for $457, and the largest $7472, granted to a rural resident. Other high loans were for $5678 and $4838.

There were 15 home loans for under $1000; twenty-two for sums between $1000 and $2000, eleven between $2000 and $3000, eight between $3000 and $4000, seven between $4000 and $5000, one for more than $5000, and one for more than $7000.

The loans are all extended to citizens of established residence and high standing.

PINNACLE TO OPEN SORTERS SCHOOL

The Pinnacle Packing company next Monday will start a school for sorters under the direction of Clarence Pankey, Manuel Feedman and Frank Isaacs, in their No. 3 packing plant. There will be no tuition charge. The age limit for sorters will be 30 years. All former employees of the plant are requested to report next Monday morning at 8:30 o'clock.

Isaacs says it is the intention to make packers out of those adapted for that work as soon as vacancies occur.

Most of the sorters are residents of this county and city, and have been employed by the Pinnacle company in previous years.
