COOK QUIZZED IN GIRL'S DEATH

Authorities at Norman, Okla., ordered Mrs. Hazel Brown (right), fraternity house cook, held as a material witness in connection with the death of Marian Mills (left), 20-year-old University of Oklahoma beauty queen. Mrs. Brown, in whose home the girl died, said Miss Mills had taken an overdose of illegally prescribed medicine in efforts to avert motherhood. Neal Myers, a pharmacy student, was sought in the case. (Associated Press Photos)

By PAUL MALLON. WASHINGTON, D. C., July 16.—The Wall Street insiders are walling that not more than 5 per cent of the marketeers have been making expenses these past 60 days.

The market is thinner than it has ever been. Trading volume hovers around the low-tide periods of 1924 and 1913, but those periods are not comparable because fewer stocks were listed then.

There is no question but that a good many traders are going to have to find other means of livelihood unless the market develops some life soon.

The new securities commission is one reason for the depressing quiet among the bulls and bears. The commission has not done anything yet, but the animals are afraid of what it will do.

John D. Buchanan to Florence Slorah, deed to lot in block 2, Jackson's addition to Medford, Edward Seufert, et ux to Rogue Valley Dairy Products Co., QCD to lots in Central Point, Walter A. Folger, et ux to George B. Dean, et ux, deed to land in DLG 75, twp. 37 S., R. 2 west, Charles R. Fry, et ux to John Earl Fry, deed to land in sec. 29, twp. 33 S., R. 1 west, B. de Cathelina, et ux to C. A. Mahary, et al, trustees, deed to land in sec. 31, twp. 38 S., R. 1 east, Mrs. Ida J. Poole to I. D. Bostwick, et ux, deed to E. 10 acre of SE 1/4 of NE 1/4 section 12, twp. 38 S., R. 3 west, Thomas T. Vestal, et ux to First National Bank of Eagle Point, deed to N 1/2 of NW 1/4, SE 1/4 of NW 1/4, and SW 1/4 of NE 1/4 sec. 18, twp. 35 S., R. 1 east.

That commission is considered probably the best of the many commissions overruling Washington. It is well-balanced, with experts on corporation and public utilities financing regulations. If the one member who is supposed to know about the securities business is sufficient balance for the lack of securities experience among the others, the commission should make a good reputation for itself.

What is really more responsible for the doldrums in the market is the fact that the public is not buying stocks. The boys at the tape say they have scarcely seen an outside dollar coming in for two months.

There are plenty of alps between the corn and the hog on the corn-hog checks.

The stream of checks was supposed to have started pouring out in the middle west two months ago. Until a few days ago, it amounted to little more than a trickle.

Most of the trouble centered around the inability of the census bureau and the AAA to agree on what the farmers should get. The census made a survey, and complained when farm applications came in indicating a much greater curtailment of production than the survey had supposed possible.

The census bureau seemed to suspect some of the farmers must be chiseling, but the AAA finally concluded the census survey was too old to be a good guide. (The survey was made last January.)

The pump primers are hitting up the pace on the checks now to make up for lost time. Up to 7 a. m. July 12 they had sent out $8,850,081.65. They think they sent out probably a half million more up to Friday. Even at that, less than one-twelfth of their job is done.

The whole outlay of $125,000,000 will be in the hands of the farmers within the next 30 or 60 days, the primers not contend. That will mean a lot of purchasing power in the corn belt.

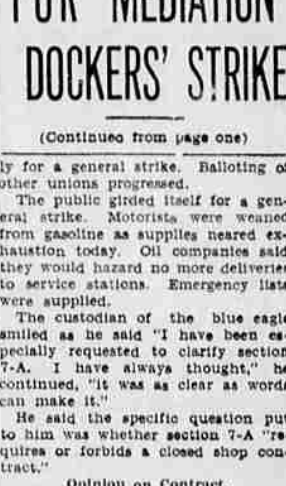

Financial men nearly toppled off their chairs a few days ago when they saw an advertisement in a New York newspaper by a savings bank seeking mortgage loans.

When banks start advertising for loans, they are feeling the pinch of having too much money on hand and not enough out at interest. Other banks have been complaining repeatedly about the growing extent of their savings accounts. They had to cut their interest rates heretofore.

This indicates the administration policy of pressing hard on the money market by lowering the banks up with excess reserves, et al, is beginning to have an effect.

JOHNSON PLEADS FOR MEDIATION DOCKERS' STRIKE

ly for a general strike. Balloting of other unions progressed.

The public urged itself for a general strike. Motorists were warned from gasoline as supplies neared exhaustion today. Oil companies said they would hazard no more deliveries to service stations. Emergency lists were supplied.

The custodian of the blue eagle smiled as he said "I have been especially requested to clarify section 7-A. I have always thought," he continued, "it was as clear as words can make it."

He said the specific question put to him was whether section 7-A "requires or forbids a closed shop contract."

Opinion on Contract. "It does neither," General Johnson explained, "and a closed shop contract under a code would not be illegal, but in the opinion of Donald Richberg, our general counsel, and in my own opinion, when an employer comes to enforce his closed shop agreement by requiring as a condition of employment that a man join a particular union not of that man's choosing, the employer would be that act be violating section 7-A."

The general mentioned that "in saying this I am just interpreting the written words of that statute and I am not expressing any opinion on the merits of closed shop agreements."

He returned to the subject of the coastwide waterfront strike, without mentioning it specifically, with the declaration that it is not good business, it is not good American, it is merely madness to say that any set of our people cannot sit down around a table without violence or bloodshed.

Strikes Never Profit. "Strikes are a necessary evil, but like wars, they never got anything for anybody, unless it was bloodshed and black eyes."

Then he added "on the other hand, unwillingness of employers to sit down at a table with representatives of their workers is a relic of economic barbarism."

General Johnson was applauded often as time and again he pounded a point home with military directness. He smiled frequently—and tolerantly—but seemed weary. He was up before dawn at Salt Lake City yesterday and had left by plane for Portland that he might keep his scheduled program to address the Pacific Advertising Clubs association.

Mayor Joseph K. Carson of Portland did not fare as well as Johnson at the hands of the stadium crowd. The object of many critical statements from labor since the waterfront controversy broke on May 9, Carson was booed and hissed when he stepped to the speaker's stand to welcome Johnson to the city. At last cheers and loud clapping drowned out the boos, and General Johnson, sitting on the platform behind Carson, led the applause with lusty hand clapping.

The NRA has settled five threatened strikes of national scope," Johnson stated, "and while strikes are happily no longer NRA's unwelcome babies, Edward F. McGrady has served well in the NRA in all this strife (the reference was to the Pacific coast strike) and I hope you people will listen to him. Labor can do so with both pride and profit and industry can depend on him for justice and business-like decision."

Merits Not Discussed. "In promoting the organization of industry," General Johnson said, "we recognized that labor was also entitled to complete rights of organization." He finally dismissed the strike situation with the statement that "I will not discuss the merits of the conflict that has paralyzed your commerce. That is in other hands, in the keeping of the able men who have taken the lead in the effort of trying to restore peace, and work out an equitable solution. I wish well to both sides. I pray for peace and I will do anything in my power to restore it."

When loaded with a charge of powder heavy enough to make a loud explosion in a scene, most anything is liable to happen. Leggett went on, "
