Here Wednesday

"Cockeyed Cavaliers," the new comedy hit coming to the Craterian theater tomorrow, brings Bert Wheeler and Robert Woolsey, the screen cuckoos, in some more of their non-sensical and hilarious goofing-around. This time Wheeler and Woolsey appear as gallants of the medieval age, aided and abetted by the Thelma Todd, Dorothy Lee and a bevy of riding femininity. The comics are riding the rods of a royal stagecoach when they encounter Mary Ann eluding the Duke of Weskit, to whom she has been promised in marriage. They unwittingly wander with Mary Ann into the Duke's palace.

Making the most of a situation, Bert and Mary Ann fall in love, while Bob pursues the alluring Genevieve, the Duke's niece. The rollicking romance reaches a high pitch when the Duke, Genevieve's husband, and a wild boar hunt bring affairs to an issue.
