

KLAMATH INDIANS ARE WEALTHIEST OF ANY IN NATION

Per Capita Worth Placed At $28,000—Reservation Is Richest Community On Earth Says Bureau Head.

By H. C. HUNTER
Pacific Northwest Associated Press Correspondent

WASHINGTON, July 25.—(AP)—Although much has been written about the wealth of the Cherokee and Osage Indians in Oklahoma from their rich oil lands, the Klamath Indians of Oregon, in their villages in the cloud-swept mountains and on the plains, have remained comparatively unnoticed with their per capita wealth of almost twice that of the middle western tribes.

The Klamath reservation, where the per capita wealth amounts to $28,000, was described by Commissioner John Collier of the bureau of Indian affairs as the richest community on earth.

He pointed out that the per capita wealth there at 6 per cent interest amounted to an annual income of $1,700 per person or $8500 per family each year.

Million Acre Plot
Recent investigations by the Indian bureau turned the spotlight on the Klamath, living peacefully on their one million-acre plot in the Oregon mountains, surrounded by vast pine and Douglas fir forests filled with deer and watered by the swift streams pouring down from their mountain sources.

Collier pointed out that there may be other communities in the United States where the per capita is more than $28,000 and cited some of the fashionable suburbs of New York. But this, he said, would be only an average of the wealth of the rich men with the millions of dollars, and of their servants with meager salaries.

In the mountains of southern Oregon, however, where the Klamath holds forth, every person has his or her $28,000 or its equivalent in forests in the tribal property.

The picture is not so bright when it is considered that the wealth is in standing timber which, at the present time, would be hard to turn into actual cash. But figures obtained from the bureau showed that the income of the tribe over the past 20 years has exceeded $10,000,000 in actual cash.

Life Is Easy
In addition to whatever income the tribesmen obtain from the sale of forest lands, they can get as much as they can earn by their own efforts. They can possibly, in normal times, make fair wages working in the lumber industry and obtain from the streams nearly everything they want to eat.

The Indian bureau pointed out that practically all of the more than 1200 members of the tribe are gathered in the three villages of Chiloquin, Sprague River and Beatty, while a few live on their own farms scattered over the mountain sides.

Life, the reports say, is comfortable on the reservation and there is little incentive to individual effort. The Indians have largely discarded the old customs and dress of their people, only a few old men clinging to the old ways. The others have adopted the dress, ways and manners of the white men, living in substantial houses and wearing "store clothes."

CROWDS OF CURIOUS JAM MORGUE TO SEE DILLINGER CORPSE

DILLINGER DETAILS ARE GIVEN POLICE BY THE GIRL IN RED

women who were with the Indians outlaw just before he was killed by federal bullets, was Mrs. Anna Sage, 42, brown-haired and brown-eyed, police arrested her last night at her home just around the corner from the Biograph theatre, out of which Dillinger walked unsuspectingly Sunday night to his death.

Mrs. Sage told police she knew John Dillinger as "Jim Lawrence," and that he posed as an employee of the Chicago board of trade.

In New York Recently
From the "girl in red" after long questioning by the police came the story of the last woman Dillinger associated with, named by Mrs. Sage as Mrs. Roy Keele, 26-year old divorced wife of a Gary, Ind., policeman—of her Dillinger spent his time just prior to the fatal shooting, and of how he said he went to New York recently "on a business trip." He was also reported to have witnessed a Chicago baseball game.

But it was not learned whether Mrs. Sage or Mrs. Keele furnished the information with which Dillinger was trapped. Both fled from the scene of the shooting, but Mrs. Sage returned, after changing her red dress for another. Mrs. Keele declined to go back to the scene and later went to her mother's home in Fargo, N. D., Mrs. Sage said.

Secrecy the government agents threw around the affair still persisted and it could not be learned whether either woman will make any claim to the $15,000 reward that hung over the public enemy's head.

Deny Woman Informer
Captain Timothy O'Neil of the East Chicago police, who with Sergeant Martin Zarkovich was among the Indiana officers at the death scene, denied emphatically that Mrs. Sage had anything to do with the Dillinger trap, adding that an underworld character had seen Dillinger and had given the information to Zarkovich.

"All this talk about a woman in a red dress tipping us off to Dillinger's whereabouts is untrue," he said.

Captain Thomas Duffy of the Sheffield Avenue police, who with Captain John Stege questioned Mrs. Sage at length before she was turned ed over to the custody of federal agents last night, said he believed that she had sheltered Dillinger knowingly or unknowingly for several weeks. It was in her apartment, the police said they learned, that Dillinger and Mrs. Keele first met.

Mrs. Sage, twice married, and also known as Mrs. Anna Miller and Mrs. Anna Chlak, admitted, the police said, that Dillinger had been in her apartment "three or four evenings" but denied reports, previously circulated, that he had roomed there. She said she was well acquainted with Sergeant Zarkovich, who has been credited in some reports as the man who trailed Dillinger down.

Phone Number Secret
Mrs. Keele, also known by her maiden name of Polly Hamilton, kept company with Dillinger, Mrs. Sage said, but the hunted outlaw would not let Mrs. Keele know his telephone number on the pretext he was a married man.

The "girl in red" told Captain Stege that Dillinger came to her house last Sunday evening, when he played cards with Mrs. Keele, whose picture, the police said they learned, was in Dillinger's watch.

Captain Stege asked her, "After you had your dinner Sunday night, who suggested that you go to the theater?"

"Dillinger did."
"He suggested that theater?" asked Stege.

"Yes."
"In the theater I found a seat in the middle. Dillinger and Mrs. Hamilton got a seat down front, way in front. Before the show was over I saw them coming up the aisle and they called me and said 'Come on' and I got up and walked out."

Tells of Shooting
"We walked out of the theater and went southeast toward my house. When we reached the National Tea store, a big man pushed me or pulled me and stepped on my foot and I looked around and said 'Boy' and he had a gun. I heard a shot in front of me and I looked and saw Dillinger on the ground and I stood there and looked. I did not know what had happened. Polly pulled me by the hand. She said 'Jimmy get shot' and she gave me one pull. There was a big man with a gun and he said 'Just a minute,' and he left us and we walked west."

"One of the officers said, 'Just a minute, just a minute,' and he looked over the crowd and she started to pull me and we walked west on Lincoln avenue, south on Sheffield red," said he was the man, with the gun who attempted to halt Mrs. Sage, adding that a big man in the crowd got in his way as she fled.

The Dunn woman, who worked with Mrs. Keele in a restaurant, was also questioned by the police but was later released. She told the investigators it was Mrs. Keele's picture in Dillinger's watch.

Slayer Unknown
The mystery as to who shot Dillinger remained. Detective Slattery, who happened on the death scene accidentally, said it appeared to him that Sergeant Zarkovich and Policeman Glyn Stretch of East Chicago were the ones who fired the shots. Federal Agent Samuel A. Cowley told the coroner's jury that the government men alone did the shooting. Melvin Purvis, chief of the Chicago federal bureau of investigation, declined to discuss the case.

"Dillinger is dead and the Dillinger case is dead," he said. "The name of anyone who gets the reward or part of it will never be made public by the government."

FARLEY DECLARES DEMOCRATS HAVE FULFILLED PLANKS

Genial Jim On Flying Visit To Oregon Says New Deal Is Economic Crusade To Halt Exploiting Weak.

PORTLAND, July 25.—(AP)—Genial Jim Farley, postmaster-general, patronage dispenser, chairman of the Democratic national committee, and missionary of the new deal, told Oregon last night that "this new deal is a great economic crusade." And that "we must no longer permit the strong to exploit the weak."

"The exchange of hopelessness for confidence," he declared, "is due to one man—Franklin D. Roosevelt."

"Big Jim" paid the state a flying visit. He reached Portland by train at 3:45 p. m. yesterday and left for Seattle at 11:30 o'clock last night. He spoke at a banquet in his honor, and conferred with state and city officials and Democratic leaders.

Praise for McNary
Declaring that the Democratic party, responsive to the will of the people, had fulfilled "virtually every major plank," Farley observed, too, that Senator Charles L. McNary of Oregon, minority floor leader, had offered only "clean and fair" opposition to the administration.

Farley urged that Charles H. Martin, retiring congressman and Democratic nominee for governor, be elected and predicted he would be "as good and able a governor as we in Washington have found him a loyal and conscientious legislator." He expressed hope Congressman Pierce will be returned to congress "to take up a diligent fight for measures helpful to the people of the nation and to the people of Oregon, and declared that Walter B. Giesson, Democratic nominee from the third district, and R. R. Turner, nominee from the first congressional district, "would be a credit to your state in the halls of the congress of the United States."

Old Masks Seen on G. O. P.
Turning from the Democratic side of the political picture, Farley said, "Now we begin to hear complaints about the recovery program, and the ghost dancers of the Republican party are at large again, and I am sure if you look closely you will see the same familiar masks that they wore in the late summer and fall of 1932."

"Naturally," he continued, "men are not disposed to submit without complaint when special privileges and illegal advantages are taken from them."

Those now leading in criticism of the administration, Farley charged, "are the very men who clamored most loudly for the government to take

EDUCATION PHASE OF CCC PROVING DISTINCT VALUE

"The educational program in the CCC camps of the ninth corps area has passed the preliminary stage of organization and has already proved one of the most valuable features of the Civilian Conservation Corps project."

This was the statement of J. B. Griffing, educational adviser for the ninth corps area, who conferred with officers and educational advisers of the Medford district here Tuesday. Every camp commander and educational adviser from the 21 camps of the district were here to discuss their problems and make plans for the future.

Major Clare H. Armstrong, district commander, addressed the group and pointed out that the program in the camps was not one of formal study but was a project in character building and citizenship. Through the cooperation of the forest service agencies, the men are being given vocational training as well as the elements necessary to make them good citizens when their "itch" with the CCC is over.

Mr. Griffing, who came here from San Francisco for the conference, commended Major Armstrong for having laid the framework for a successful program here.

"The camp commanders and advisers under Major Armstrong have completed the early stages of an entirely new educational plan, and will now be able to go ahead with confidence," said Mr. Griffing.

DRIED FRUIT CODE HEARING SLATED

WASHINGTON, July 25.—(AP)—A public hearing on the proposed code for the Pacific coast dried fruit industry will be held here on Saturday, August 4, according to an announcement by the national recovery administration. Proponents of the code say they represent 80 per cent of the trade.

One of the provisions of the code is that all products of the dried fruit industry be sold on a uniform contract. A basic maximum of 40 hours work for a week is provided for in the proposal, although 48 hours would be permitted during seasonal peaks.

Minimum wages for office workers would range from $14 to $16 a week. Other employees would receive 40 cents an hour except those engaged in wrapping, sorting, lining and checking. They would get 33 1/2c.
