NORTON SUSTAINED ON ALL POINTS IN TED HAINES CASE

The supreme court sustained Circuit Judge H. D. Norton on all points in the appeal of Ted Haines, Red Top district resident, serving three years in state prison for conviction of a statutory offense. A copy of the decision was received today, disallowing the appeal.

Haines, through his attorney, Rawles Moore, raised five alleged errors in the trial and none was upheld. It was claimed that the court erred in denying the plea of Haines for more time and the permitting of prejudicial testimony by the state. The high court holds that none of Haines' rights had been impaired by the court ruling on a speedy trial, that due notice had been given and that Haines had before the trial date was set entered a plea of not guilty.

The case, at the time, attracted great interest in the Red Top district where all concerned were known.

FATHER SLEW TOT TO GET INSURANCE HE TELLS POLICE

HOUSTON, Tex., July 25.—(AP)—Eljah Stuart, 28, confessed to police last night that he killed his 5-year-old daughter, Dortha, to get money to support her twin sister.

Her body was found in stagnant Cypress creek, near here, after a wide search. Stuart previously had reported her kidnaped.

Dortha, curly-haired and blue-eyed, bore a remarkable resemblance to Shirley Temple, child movie star. The mother is dead.

Police learned Stuart took out a $400 insurance policy on Dortha's life less than a month ago. The policy, covering only the life of the one twin, was received by the father yesterday.

Confronted with these facts, Stuart broke down. He said he drove his sleeping daughter to Cypress creek and held her head under the water "until she didn't move any more."

"I was in such circumstances that I thought I would be doing the best thing by killing her," he said.

Stuart's story of holding Dortha under water until she drowned did not coincide with findings of Herbert Page, county health officer, who conducted an autopsy. Page said there was no water in the child's lungs or stomach; that she evidently died from a caustic poison. Her lips were burned.

Stuart previously had told police that Dortha was taken from his parked automobile last night while he was in a hamburger stand. He reported her disappearance to police immediately.
