DWINDLING BUTTER STOCKS AIDS TONE PORTLAND MARKET

PORTLAND, July 25.—(AP)—Decreasing stocks of butter available within the Portland territory suggest reasons for the current strength underlying the entire trade. Recent betterment in values here although aided somewhat by cold storage interests is due chiefly to the rapid decrease in the home supply, both central and outstate offerings being somewhat curtailed during recent days.

Open market prices on cube butter continued to reflect even greater strength than is apparent on the produce exchange although late advance in the latter price was finally forced to meet somewhat the strengthening conditions where actual sales are made.

Butterfat buying prices were firm all around with premiums continued by some makers.

Trading in the egg market continuing very firm and prices were being well held for quality goods. There was growing discrimination among many stuffer is therefore being more or less shaded.

Low prices were being held in the live chicken trade with sales of light and medium hens mostly 10c lb. Broilers were moving around 12-13c for white with colored sorts around 15c for 2 1/2 lb. and heavier.

Firm tone was maintained in the tomato trade with all supplies being sought at either full former values, or at a further advance.

Market was showing a fairly steady tone for cantaloupes with the minimum allowed under the code, reaching generally and the season just getting into swing.

Trade in peaches was holding well. The local and The Delite movement appeared at its height and next week the Yakima sections will be under full swing. Quality in general was good.

NEW YORK, July 25.—(AP)—Stocks dipped and rallied somewhat nervously today but, in the final hour, gains of fractions to around a point or so predominated. The close was steady to firm. Transfers approximated 1,400,000 shares.

An address of Chairman Kennedy of the securities exchange control commission at Washington, in which he asserted the regulatory body desired "sound and broad" markets and had no thought of "restricting proper business profits" was published about half an hour before the finish of business. It did not appear to have affected equities one way or the other.

REVOLUTIONISTS STRIKE SUDDEN BLOW IN AUSTRIA

The minister of justice and the general director of public safety, in a public message stated the revolutionists who had occupied the radio station had been overpowered. All persons were warned that martial law was still in force and that any action against the lawful government of the country would be dealt with as high treason.

A police detective who is serving as a go-between between the revolutionists and officials in the government building said Dollfus was injured and lying on a sofa in the so-called yellow room.

The council communicated with President Miklas at Velden, who gave instructions not to enter into negotiations with the invaders of the chancellery.

It was decided to detail another army battalion to duty about the building and to present the invaders with an ultimatum to surrender within a quarter of an hour, failing which the building would be attacked.

The first assault, it was decided, would be by tear gas. Telephonic communication outside the country in any language besides German was forbidden tonight.
