WHIMS OF WOMEN GIVE HEADACHE TO CLOTH FACTORIES

WHIMS OF WOMEN GIVE HEADACHE TO CLOTH FACTORIES: LONDON - (UP) - Americans, and American women in particular, have been responsible for the headache from which some British textile manufacturers have been suffering recently as a result of rapid changes of taste across the Atlantic in the all-important matter of fashions in clothes and dress materials...

WHIMS OF WOMEN GIVE HEADACHE TO CLOTH FACTORIES: Not only are Americans regarded here as leaders of style in women's clothes, but they always are on the lookout for novelty in design and color, according to fashion experts. As a result, British textile and clothing manufacturers are being compelled more and more to break with the more conservative methods hitherto prevailing in order to cope with the kaleidoscopic movements of fashion in the United States...

WHIMS OF WOMEN GIVE HEADACHE TO CLOTH FACTORIES: John Mitcheson, consul-in-charge of the trade department at the British Consulate General in New York, declared recently in a press interview that textile firms in Great Britain still are able to maintain a moderate export business with the United States, owing to the attention paid by them to developments in color and style, and despite the tremendous progress made in recent years by manufacturers of textiles in America...

WHIMS OF WOMEN GIVE HEADACHE TO CLOTH FACTORIES: He stated, however, that the demand for novelty in the United States presents an element of danger to manufacturers, as stocks of goods are liable to decrease in value in an alarming manner, owing to a sudden about-face of fashion. On this demand for novelty on the other side of the Atlantic is making textile-goods manufacturers in Great Britain throw overboard the conservative methods of the past century which were confined to the United Press by the heads of several fashion houses in London. There was some difference of opinion, however, regarding the extent to which these methods have already been scrapped...
