

RAIN OR NO RAIN, MIDWEST FARMERS LIKE THEIR LAND

Suggestion for Evacuation of Drought-Stricken Area Meets Firm Opposition - Turn in Tide is Visioned

By Herbert Plummer WASHINGTON (AP)—The federal reclamation bureau let itself in for more than it anticipated when its head, Dr. Elwood Mead, suggested evacuation of the drought-stricken western half of the Dakotas and the eastern slope of the Rocky mountains.

The immediate reaction of the affected area to Dr. Mead's proposal apparently settles the question. The government's job is to help these people stick it out rather than to evacuate them.

The explanation, say specialists here, lies in the fact that the people of the western plains have in them that pioneer blood which is strong because, as the saying goes, "the cowboys never started and the weaklings never got there."

Lawrence Westbrook, assistant director in charge of federal emergency drought relief, says the problem of helping these people has to a large extent developed into one of helping them where they are.

Telephone Story He cited a county in which 800 families are trying to eke out a living on 430,000 acres which have a value of only $1 to $3 an acre and, as farm land, should be abandoned.

"Most of them expect to stay in this section, however," he added, "irrespective of action taken by the government."

Westbrook believes the records of the telephone company best tell the story of whether these homesteaders are running to cover or standing fast.

The first county in one state to be designated as an "emergency drought area" has 109 telephones in rural homes today as against 82 on the first of this year. Out of the 269 rural telephones in the county mentioned above where 500 families are trying to "eke out a living," only eight have been discontinued this year.

In the 10 drought counties of this particular state which first were designated as drought areas, the total number of telephones has increased this year from 608 to 671.

"They'll stick" "These people were skating on thin ice above a fire-box," says Westbrook, "and now the inevitable has happened. But they want to stick it out until nature and agricultural progress bring them another period of comparative prosperity."

"Desirable as it might be to shift them to better-watered lands, the stubborn spirit which makes these folk hold fast to the scorched areas they have won at such a cost cannot be ignored by the government."

The reply of one western South Dakota rancher to Dr. Mead's proposal to move the people out of the arid areas is typical of the feeling of all, it is said.

"There's been lots of money made in western South Dakota," he said, "and there'll be plenty made in the future."

Bob Slinger Wins Promotion General Petroleum Company

Bob Slinger, who has recently been associated with the General Petroleum corporation as one of the attendants of the new station at Main and Ivy streets, has been promoted to the position of manager of the General Petroleum station at 600 East Main street, according to the announcement made yesterday by Ted Higgins, the southern Oregon District Manager. This promotion comes as recognition for the excellent service Mr. Slinger has rendered this company during the past months.

Bob Slinger is well-fitted to fill the position as manager of the new East Main street station, as he has been connected with the oil industry in this section of southern Oregon for several years.

CCC, PARK HEADS ENJOY WELCOME AT G-C BANQUET

"You will see there is something else worth while besides the struggle for the almighty dollar.

"The men are building fire trails, fire breaks, developing the natural resources of the forests, stopping devastating fires and developing park areas."

The director reminded the people of Medford and the west that because of this fine territory and the opportunity for so much development that thousands of boys from eastern sections had been sent to camps on the Pacific coast.

Has Helped Medford. The Civilian Conservation corps has helped Medford a great deal, with headquarters here for numerous camps. The CCC has bought 20,000 trucks, millions of gallons of gasoline, and has spent millions for clothing and food," he said.

For winter camps, an order was placed for 250 million feet of lumber, said to be the largest place order in history. Daily $130,000 is spent for food and the surgeon general's report shows that the health of the men is better than the enlisted men in the regular U. S. army."

Mr. Cammerer, who has been with the park service for 20 years, and for 15 years had been assistant director of the national park service, was named director last year, adding to his duties the supervision of the buildings and reservations, which also include national monuments.

The park head, who also gave a brief address, highly praised Mr. Fechner, saying "He has put his time, energy and soul into the first thing to come out of the new deal, and it is inspiring to see how well the unit is functioning."

Tells of Service. Mr. Cammerer explained how the park service was abolished last August, and the new department formed by joining together several departments and eliminating others. The scope of the department, as explained by him, is tremendous. A department of the interior building is now being constructed at a cost of $10,000,000; $350,000 is being put into work on the White House, and numerous other projects are now underway.

"This is national park year, and I urge you to make every year such. There is plenty of money, plenty of people are traveling and plenty of people spending money."

Mr. Cammerer detailed how parks and monuments were being started and built up in the east as well as the west. "You people can appreciate already having the land without having to buy it back for these projects, as is necessary in the east," he said.

"It has been pressing for years past that this country needs recreated forest areas, and this cannot be equalled by other countries."

Mr. Cammerer was a visitor to Medford and Crater Lake a year ago, and last evening expressed the desire that he might at some time be able to come here and make his permanent home.

The gathering also had the pleasure last evening of greeting Colonel C. G. Thomson, superintendent of Yosemite National park, having formerly been superintendent of Crater Lake National park. He told of the many friends he and Mrs. Thomson had made during their stay in Medford, and they also plan to return here to make their home, upon retirement.

Ben E. Harder, president of the Jackson County Chamber of Commerce, presided as toast master and the Cavemen and Cavewomen from Grants Pass, attired in their skin garbs, brought greetings to the national leaders.

Raymond Lageson, accompanied at the piano by Fred Alton Haight, sang "To Crater Lake" and "Wagon Wheels." Music during the evening was played by the Melody Boys.

Grants Pass Represented. C. C. Demaray, president of the Grants Pass Chamber of Commerce, was introduced, and Don Newbury, attorney for the Grants club, read lengthy resolutions passed at a recent meeting, thanking government officials for the Williams creek cut-off to Oregon Caves, which he never been built. W. S. Bolger, poet laureate for the Grants, further extended the club's appreciation in a verse he had composed.

Introduced by Mr. Harder were George Porter, mayor of Medford; T. L. Stanley, manager of the Shasta-Cascade Wonderland association; M-

Mr. Arno B. Cammerer was introduced and presented a beautiful bouquet of gladioli.

Among the high officials who will be present, Mr. Redden said, is Charles F. Poole, of Eugene, state grand master. More than 300 members are expected to attend.

BANISH COMMON CONSTIPATION WITH DELICIOUS CEREAL

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN Brings Relief

Look out for headaches, loss of appetite and energy, sallow complexion, sleeplessness. Frequently, these are warning signs of common constipation. If neglected, your health may be impaired.

Today, you can rid yourself of common constipation by eating a tempting cereal. Laboratory tests show that Kellogg's ALL-BRAN furnishes "bulk" and vitamin B to aid regular habits. ALL-BRAN is also rich in iron for the blood.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is much like that found in leafy vegetables. Within the body, it forms a soft mass. Gently, this clears out the intestinal wastes. How much better this is than taking patent medicines!

Two tablespoonfuls of ALL-BRAN daily will usually overcome most types of common constipation. Chronic cases, with each meal. If seriously ill, see your doctor. ALL-BRAN makes no claim to be a "cure-all."

Serve ALL-BRAN as a cereal, or use in cooking. At all grocers. In the red-and-green package. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

The public is invited to call at this attractively arranged grocery tomorrow to profit by the exceptional values offered in celebrating the grand opening day.

Then when the family shouts, "Oh, can't we go on a picnic?" all you have to do is bustle things into a hamper and answer, "All right, let's go."

Items That Belong in Every Picnic Basket

Best Foods Mayonnaise. This all-purpose dressing should be used liberally when making sandwiches. Keeps them fresh and prevents them from drying out. And, of course, you will use it on the picnic salad.

Horseradish Mustard. Purest mustard and fresh horseradish. Neither too hot nor too mild. Just right for sandwiches, frankfurters and cold meats.

Bread and Butter Pickles. The original fresh cucumber pickle, never soaked in brine. Pickles otherwise perfect, have been almost ruined because the hostess forgot B&B Pickles. So put them at the head of your list.

Thousand Island Dressing. Does your menu call for a fish or egg salad? Ah, then by all means get a jar of this marvelous dressing. Also perfect as a cocktail sauce.

Best Foods Relish Spread. Perfect, as is, in sandwiches. Blends with almost any other sandwich filler. Delicious on boiled ham.

Best Foods French Dressing. Perhaps your salad calls for French dressing. Here is one that we honestly think is better than home-made. And priced about half of what it used to cost.
