Spencer Tracy, trouble shooter for the telephone company, seems to be getting along with Constance Cummings in this scene from "Looking for Trouble," starting a three-day run at the Rialto theater today.

It is popularly supposed to be the woman who pays and pays, but the positions are reversed in "Or Human Bondage," powerful drama of dominating love, which stars Lealle Howard, and which comes to the Craterian theater tomorrow.

COLORED GIANTS PLAY ROGUES NEXT MONDAY Announcement was made today by Hal Haight, manager of the Rogues baseball team that the game with the Yakima Colored Giants, originally scheduled at the fairgrounds last evening, will be played next Monday, at 5:30. Failure of Manager Haight to receive a letter in time to publish news of last night's postponement caused a number to go to the diamond for the game. "His Double Life" Is Amusing Film A charming story, delightfully acted and simply and intelligently directed, is "His Double Life," now at the Rocky theater. Outstanding in the picture is the work of Roland Young, co-starred as the bemused painter who, through an error and his own diffidence, watches his own funeral in Westminster Abbey, and Lillian Gish as the woman to whom the artist finally turns for contentment and a home. Roland Young never has had a role that fitted his whimsical style more perfectly.

ARREST DOZEN IN AUTO TAG DRIVE The state police drive against operators of autos bearing foreign licenses in this county, has resulted in a dozen arrests and the issuance of 42 new Oregon licenses by the sheriff's office. Those arrested are charged with operating an auto with improper plates. The Oregon law requires that any person who establishes a residence in the state, or is engaged in a gainful occupation therein, shall procure an Oregon license. Many of the new licenses have been issued to transients engaged in fruit work. State police now estimate that a majority of the foreign licensed cars have complied with Oregon law. The drive covers all sections of Jackson county. Use Mail Tribune want ads.

EXTRA EGGS UP ONE CENT TODAY The produce exchange today boosted egg prices 1 cent for specials, extras and medium extras.
