BURSTING STARS POSSIBLE CAUSE OF COSMIC RAYS

By ALFRED BERTHINET

uggests that coamic rays have their origin in special "burating" stars, technically referred to as super-novae stars, has been proposed by Dr. Fritz Zwicky of the California Institute of Technology and Dr. W. Baade of Mount Wilson Observatory. According to Dr. Baade and Dr. Zwicky, these super-novae stars are normal stars which explode-at which time they are prominent in the sky because of the brilliant light which accompanies the eruption. In the process of bursting they may lose more than half their mass by radiating it into inter-stellar space

Both ordinary light and ultra-violet light result as part of this flaring up. Simultaneously with the transmission of these two types of of scientists, no super-novse star has been known to have burst. Thus any opportunity to prove that the cosmic Notice to Creations. In the County Court of the State of Oregon, in and for the County of rays might have their birth in our
