COLEMAN SPEAKS ON TAX PROGRAM AT KIWANIS MEET

Discussing the repeal of the present property tax, and passing of an income tax, inheritance tax and sales tax, which would do away with all property tax, J. B. Coleman, county assessor today addressed the members of the Kiwanis club, using as his topic, the "Twenty Percent Tax Limitation Measure," which is to be on the November ballot.

Figures were presented by the Kiwanians by Mr. Coleman, which show the present taxation, and the effect the passage of the millage tax will have, should the law pass.

For Ashland, he listed the 1934 millage tax at $39,590, with a total levy of 38 mills equaling $147,242, thus showing a net reduction of $99,674. The Medford general fund for 1934, he showed at $78,850, with a 20 per cent millage tax of $60,878, making a reduction of $15,981.

Medford's present taxation is 51.1 mills, totaling $49,739, and under the 20 per cent limitation, would be 38.4 mills, or $237,997, with a reduction of $172,252.

The speaker pointed out, however, that the proposed measure offers no solution as how the money under the limitations, is to be raised.

Ed M. White, one of the guests at the meeting, gave a short talk, and stated that he 20 per cent tax shows that the present system of taxation is unjust, in that it is throwing too large a burden on property.

Other guests present were W. W. Chadwick of Salem and Langley Shesmaker of Mountain View, Calif.

heard whispers that people were saying it really was Richberg who ruled NRA. On his side, Richberg felt slighted when Johnson last June, submitted a reorganization plan to the White House without giving him a copy.

Acting under the president's later authorization to draft a program for general coordination of all recovery activities, Richberg prepared plans of his own for NRA. Miss Perkins became interested because of the labor angles. Together they saw the president Monday.

Johnson sees Ousting. Later that day they were asked to return. Johnson also was present. He told the president bluntly that he felt an effort was being made to drive him out of NRA. There were denials and further words. Finally, Mr. Roosevelt suggested that the general needs a real rest after his unremitting service, and might take a vacation trip abroad, surveying wartime recovery efforts in Europe.

Johnson exploded. He said he would do no such thing and, without ceremony, departed. An hour later Richberg and Miss Perkins slipped out of a side door, evading questioners.

Later that night just before the president retired, he received a letter from General Johnson, delivered by messenger. It covered three typewritten pages. It recalled Johnson's labors for NRA, paid his respects to his enemies, stated directly his determination to quit, and ended with one of Mr. Roosevelt's own favorite Latin phrases meaning, in free translation, "The situation speaks for itself."

F. R. Conciliatory. The president replied at once. Writing in long-hand he reiterated his regard and appreciation, asked that the resignation be withdrawn, and returning proverb for proverb, said he liked that old saying that friends always must be friends.

LIGHTNING STARTS 25 FOREST FIRES; ALL CONTROLLED

So matters stood when the president left on Tuesday for Illinois, to attend the funeral of Speaker Rainey. It was because of this undetermined situation that he changed an already-announced plan and returned from Illinois to Washington instead of going straight to Hyde park.

He saw Johnson again and the break was healed. He did insist, however, that the general take two weeks rest, and Johnson consented and departed for the beach. At the end of the two weeks he will see the president at Hyde park, and they will settle details of the new NRA set-up. And in it the fiery soldier will have first rank.

Admiral Richberg. This does not mean a break between Richberg and the president, or between Miss Perkins and the president. In her own field, Mr. Roosevelt highly regards the secretary of labor. He greatly admires Richberg, and will have other work for him should he retire from NRA. He even is said to have him in mind for elevation, some day, to the supreme court.

For Johnson it means he will be staying on when he had been planning for months to get out. Because of the demands of his private business, and because he has completed the particular phase of NRA which led him to take the job, he has been asking for release. The president, apparently, was ready to agree.

But neither liked the manner of his going, as it shaped up during the past week. So he says.

Electric Fence Controls Bulls. AUGUSTA, Me.—(UP)—It's perfectly shocking, but the state experimental station has developed a new method of keeping bulls fenced in. The fences are electrified and while the current is insufficient to harm the bulls, it is strong enough to discourage their efforts to escape.
