WARN TRUCKERS REGISTER UNDER CODE AUTHORITY

Carl S. Stuart, local representative of the Oregon state code authority for the trucking industry, has received the following letter from Ralph J. Stahel of Portland, secretary for the state:

"The period of urging operators to comply with the code for the trucking industry has elapsed and our instructions from the national code authority at this time are to furnish to the local branch of the NRA a list of all trucks operating which have not registered, lack of registration in itself being a violation of the code.

"Will you therefore supply us with a list of known operators in your community operating for hire to any degree who have not complied with the code by registering under it? Please bear in mind that the code for the trucking industry goes very much further than the state law. Anyone who hauls for compensation is obliged to register under the trucking code, regardless of the degree to which he operates for hire.

"The best way to handle the code function adequately is to clean up the problem of registering all trucks under the code as speedily as possible. If you will give us the names of the operators in your community who have not registered, I am sure that they will want to very shortly."
