

INFLATION SPEECH BY MORGENTHAU IS DISCOUNTED BY F. R.

A nation-wide radio audience last night would be reassured by friends and foes alike by at least some foes. Estimates of New Deal costs by the two camps have been billions of dollars apart.

Wall Street Reassured
Morgenthau's statement that the $2,800,000,000 "profit" the government reaped by its gold policy eventually would be applied to reducing the national debt also aroused much interest. Word from Wall Street was that this was regarded as reassuring and likely to bolster the government bond market.

Observers hold that when the treasury pays out gold certificates backed by the profit, it will mean a currency inflation of $2,800,000,000. Many onlookers had predicted that this would be the eventual decision of the government. But Morgenthau made clear that "for the present" the government would continue to keep the $2,800,000,000 "under lock and key." So there is no saying when the currency will be issued.

Public Debt Gross
Secretary Morgenthau said that from March 4, 1933, to June 30, 1934, the gross public debt increased about $6,000,000,000.

"Some observers," he said, "have concluded that it also represents the cost of the New Deal during that period, insofar as such cost is reflected in a growth of the public debt."

"This assumption is easily made, but it ignores the all-important fact that while we have increased our debt, we have also increased our assets, many of them in realizable form. By this I mean assets which in due time the government will turn into cash, thereby making them available for reduction of the national debt."

J. Verne Shangle, local photographer, today received official notice from the Sears-Robuck company, that the picture of his small daughter, Carolyn Ruth, has been placed among the 49, in the finals of the contest being conducted at A Century of Progress exposition in Chicago.

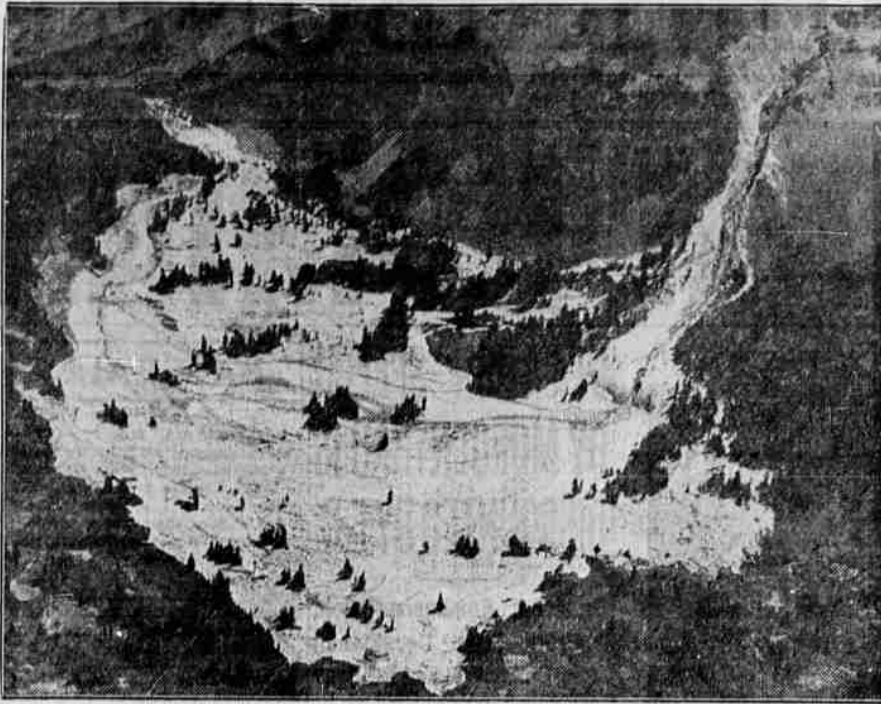

The photo taken by Shangle, has been listed with the group, from which 10 are to be selected for major prizes, totaling $40,000. First prize in the contest is $10,000.

MUDDY BLANKET COVERS MOUNTAIN SCENIC SPOT

A mass of glacial silt broke from a lake at the foot of Whitewater glacier 6800 feet up on the side of Mt. Jefferson in the Cascade range of Oregon and moved 1200 feet down, uprooting trees and spreading over an area of 250 acres. At the right is the canyon formed by the moraine wash and spread out in the grayish mass of mud. Trees and streams were buried under a muddy blanket two to 30 feet deep. (Associated Press Photo)

Two suits of the brothers were joined. The Calhouns claimed that as a result of Mrs. Palm driving her Ford car too close to their truck, it was forced into the ditch and overturned, causing damage to car, cab, and mechanism.

Pinto Colvig Provides Intimate Sidelights on Life of Mickey Mouse

(By Irva Fewell)
Tossing his gray coat from one arm to the other with uncalculated inexactness and chewing gum with an inextinguishable degree of energy, never failing to smile all the while, Pinto Colvig, artist from the Walt Disney studios in Hollywood today gave a few sidelights on Mickey Mouse, and the colored symphonies that have been amusing the world the past few years. He is here for the 90th birthday of his father, Judge Wm. M. Colvig, which is to be observed Sunday.

"I wasn't the words and the original lyrics I wrote for the 'Grasshopper' and the Ant' that I was particularly proud of, but it was that high, wide and fancy spitting," Pinto portrayed the voice of the grasshopper in the symphony, and said that his voice was recorded in four different ways before the final selection was made.

"We had to be particular about the voice," he said, "and the studio is now considering producing feature cartoons, the first to be 'Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs.'" Colvig said. In the new Encyclopaedia Britannica, which is to be published next year, Pinto Colvig's name appears as the originator of the first color comics which were known as "Pinto's Prisma Comedy Revue."

"I am to appear on the stage at the Craterian theater Thursday, Friday and Saturday of this week, to answer questions about Mickey and the Disney studios.

Accompanying him to Medford, from Portland, were Mrs. Colvig, whom he terms "A Portland Rose," their sons Vance and Courtney—the oldest and youngest of their five boys. The other three are Mason, Byington, and Bourke.

"The way we selected their names—and if anyone wants to know how to choose a name for his child—just pick the name from a Pullman car. That's the way we did."

OREGON FARMERS PAYING ON LOANS

PORTLAND, Ore., Aug. 29.—(AP)—An optimistic report of federal land bank operations in Oregon was given by E. M. Ehrhardt, president of the institution.

He reported a 27 per cent improvement in payment of installments on long-term federal land bank and commission mortgages the first seven months of this year compared with the corresponding 1933 period.

During the seven months period of this year improvement of approximately 26 per cent also was shown in rental collections from Oregon farms taken over by the bank.

About 4000 new mortgage loans—many of them refinancing for pre-existing obligations—were closed in Oregon the past seven months. The value is nearly $10,000,000, Ehrhardt said.
