WOOD CUT ARTIST TO TEACH CLASS ART OF COLOR CUT

Back to Medford, the city dearest to his heart (not excluding from the classification London, Paris and Santa Barbara) S. Lang, artist of a new medium of expression, a new school of the woodcut, has returned. And he is ready for service, he announced yesterday, adding that service is the next evolution to be realized by American mankind, the goal toward which the country is advancing under the leadership of President Roosevelt.

The service he can extend to the city of Medford, which he left four years ago for Santa Barbara, is a class in this typically American art, which he alone has developed after 20 years of constant work. He now feels that he has achieved his aim, "the American color cut" made with wood blocks but minus all lines, which have characterized the accepted Japanese woodcut, and he is ready to show others how it can be done.

The mountains, the sea, the man, he produces on American paper through his new medium, is no longer hemmed in by lines, which destroyed the sense of peace in former woodcuts, particularly those of the Japanese.

Through this absence of line he has been able to achieve heights in the imaginative realm, previously unknown in woodcut art. Many of his prints are mystic, dream pictures, but naturally and historically correct. For he is a student of nature and of early American civilization. When he produces a tree on American paper, with American dye (for he shuns the imported article) it is an American tree, known to all lovers of the forest. When he delves into Mayan life, the details are again correct, for he has devoted years to research and study of this subject. But in both pictures there is something more, a soul, without which no picture, according to the artist, "can be great."

In discussing his color cuts yesterday, Mr. Lang was emphatic in his stand that the time has come for adoption of an American method depicting American scenes. He banned as ridiculous the use of the Japanese woodcut method in presenting scenes, essentially American.

"Everything in the training of the Japanese is Japanese, and when he uses his methods to treat subjects of his own country, the result is consistent and artistic," the artist explained, "but this does not justify the American artist in copying his methods."

Because he has a sentimental feeling for Medford, and admits it, he would like to organize the first class in this new field here. If sufficient interest in such a class is found it will be organized, he declared yesterday, asking that all persons, who would like to learn the process of the American color cut and more of color, itself, get in touch with him by writing to Post Office box 1119, Medford. An immediate response will be appreciated, he stated yesterday, explaining that he is anxious to make Medford the home city of the "American color cut," the first city to learn how it is made.

In Comedy Role

Frank McHugh, whose peculiar laugh and fast wisecracks has livened many pictures, appears as James Cagney's nifty sidekick in "Here Comes the Navy," coming to the Craterian theater tomorrow, with "Pinto" Colvig on the stage.

The film, combining romance, rollicking comedy, rapid fire action and breath-taking thrills, is a smashing drama of Uncle Sam's Jack-tars afloat, ashore and in the air. Pat O'Brien is shown as an officer whose knocking down of Cagney results in the readheads joining of the navy in order to have a chance to get even. The entire picture was filmed with the co-operation of the United States navy and is filled with spectacular shots of many of the thrills that have made headline history.

On the stage, a local boy who has made good in a big way, "Pinto" Colvig, here on vacation from the Walt Disney studios in Hollywood, will show—in his own laugh-provoking style—the methods used in bringing Mickey Mouse cartoons and Billy Symphonies to life. Colvig, author of the original lyrics of many song numbers used in cartoons, has appeared over coast, national and international bookups with "his yellow clarinet," which he will have with him on the stage.

Now at Studio

Edward G. Robinson, star of "Dark Hazard," thrilling tale of dog racing, which opens at the Studio theater today.

Wynne Gibson Star Picture at Rialto

"One of the most human emotionally guided pictures of the year is 'I Give My Love,' a powerful drama of life and love as only Vicki Baum could inspire. Wynne Gibson and Paul Lukas are co-starring in this unusual film, now showing at the Rialto theater.

It was necessary for Miss Gibson to age 20 years through the action of the story, bringing her up to the age of about 40 at the end of the picture.

It is a powerful human document; a "problem" story of universal appeal and of vital interest to both sexes, with the life cry of a woman's soul predominating.

Wall St. Report

NEW YORK, Aug. 29.—(AP)—The stock market held a firm undertone during the greater part of today's session. A downward drift developed in the final hour, however, and a number of early gains were cancelled or replaced with small declines. Packing and alcohol issues were in the greatest demand. The close was irregular. Transfers approximated 700,000 shares.

Secretary Morgenthau's summary of the country's financial condition appeared to aid sentiment somewhat, although his estimates of the new deal's costs were not clear to all financial analysts.

CATTLE AND GRAIN JOIN PRICE LIFT

CHICAGO, Aug. 29.—(AP)—The upward price movement, intense in the hog market since August 3, spread to cattle and grain in Chicago today.

Hogs moved up again to a new top of $9.05 a hundredweight. This price has not been equaled since August 10, 1931.

The hog producer, when the $2.25 processing tax is added, is getting close to $10 a hundredweight for his hog, nearly $1 above the $8.80 (the 1929-1934 average) fixed by the AAA as its objective in the price raising campaign. The average cost of average yesterday was $7.42, making the average return to producers $9.67.

In the cattle alleys a new top of $10.90, also the highest since early in 1931, was paid for prime weight steers, but the bulk of the run was bringing $10 to $10.50.

NEW ARGUMENT IN WATSON TAX SALE

Further argument in the suit of Dan E. Watson against George L. Jantzer, Prospect district assessor, and Jackson county, on a tax law point, contained in the recent opinion of Circuit Judge H. D. Norton, is scheduled in circuit court tomorrow, before Judge Norton. Watson will be represented by Attorney George M. Roberts, Jackson county by District Attorney George A. Coddington and Jantzer by Attorney Frank J. Newman.

In the opinion it was held that Jackson county was within the Oregon tax law when the county court sold a homestead belonging to Watson on a delinquent tax certificate. Watson, through counsel, attacked validity of the sale.

The defense desires to discuss one point of the tax law, and is in the nature of a re-argument of the argument.

The case has been pending in the local court since last January.
