

WHEELS TO STOP SATURDAY NIGHT IS UNION'S ORDER

A large group of United Textile Workers of America and officers of a number of other labor unions assembled for the occasion.

In a short address to the labor gathering, Gorman said: "We have exhausted every resource in the direction of peaceful settlement."

"I am sorry to say, by an arrogance on the part of the employers that is amazing in this day and year."

"There are, we know, many employers who disagree with the policy of the Cotton Textile Institute almost as much as we do, but they are powerless for the present."

"Stretchout" blamed "This telegram will call a half-million workers to the strike lines. Not all of those are now employed."

The stretchout adds to the machine load per worker until he can bear no more, has robbed thousands of their chance to work. But every man and woman will rally to the strike lines and the great cotton textile industry will not move a wheel or a thread after the hour set to stop the mills."

"I emphasize to you that we are striking against the management of the industry. The Cotton Textile Institute can find nothing better to say in answer to our demands than to accuse us of striking against the government."

"Sincerely, the government does not own the mills. They are privately owned, mostly by big corporations."

"I know the American people will not allow these mill owners to hide their exploitation behind a cloak of governmental protection."

"If the mills supported the government's policy there would be no need for a strike. They have defeated the government's purpose in the textile industry."

"We are striking against management and our purpose is to correct the unbearable practices of management."

From Chas. S. Zimmerman, manager of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' union, came a pledge of full "moral and financial support" from 30,000 workers in the dress makers' union local of New York city and congratulations were received from the Oil Workers' International union.

Confident of Strength "We are able to do but little business in our executive meeting," said President Thomas F. McMahon of the United Textile Workers, "because we were being snuffed under by a flood of telegrams from local unions reporting to us that they are standing at attention awaiting the strike call, eager to have the struggle begin now that the die is cast. We are confident in our own strength and in the justice of our case."

"When this strike is won the cotton mills will be better places in which to work and the families of cotton mill workers will have a little of that 'broader life' which has come to be the hope and ambition of the wage earners of our nation."

A final drive to stir enthusiasm of the workers will be made on Labor Day in mass meetings in city squares and other public places in every community in the strike area.
