POULTRY PICTURE INTERESTS CROWD

The showing of the poultry picture "What's Ahead" at the Jackson county court house last night proved more than worthy of the attention it received from a representative crowd of local poultry raisers.

Through a series of interesting and splendidly photographed scenes on the big poultry experimental plant at General Mills Research farm the audience was shown the extreme care taken to insure accuracy in test work.

They saw enormous laying houses with their trap nests and other thoroughly practical equipment for recording egg production and feed consumption. They saw giant incubators in operation. A wonderful brooder house with ample room for 15 lots of chicks at one time.

They saw the specialists in charge of this great farm weigh baby chicks on delicate scales that weigh by grams instead of the conventional ounces.

The film took the audience through the laboratory, the feed room, the egg room, and many other equally interesting places on this unusual farm.

They were shown how seemingly small increases in efficiency could be responsible for enormous increases in the income from each ton of feed consumed, or instance, by decreasing mortality and adding 2 ounces to the average weight of baby chicks, the income from one ton of chick starter would be increased $24.00.

It was a splendid entertainment and instruction and F. E. Ganson company, Faber's Feed store and Talent Feed company, feed dealers, through whose courtesy the film was shown are to be commended for their thoughtfulness in arranging for a local showing.

Children's Prizes—1 fairy tale book, 1 fairy tale book, 1 whistle, 1 South Pole picture book, donated by F. W. Woolworth company.

Twelve cans polishing wax, 12 cans auto top dressing, 12 cans cleaning fluid, donated by The Standard Oil company.

One pint fly spray and sprayer, donated by Union Oil company.

One flashlight, donated by Western Auto Supply company.

One flashlight, donated by Littell Parts company.

Children's Prizes—1 fairy tale book, 1 fairy tale book, 1 whistle, 1 South Pole picture book, donated by F. W. Woolworth company.

The temporary injunction was granted which also seeks to set aside as unconstitutional the 1933 state marketing agreement act.

The court ordered the department of agriculture to appear September 21 and show cause why the temporary injunction should not be made permanent.

LEGION CONVENTION FINANCIAL SUCCESS

ASTORIA, Ore., Aug. 31.—(AP)—The 1934 state department Legion convention was a financial success, J. C. Wright, general chairman, announced today after a preliminary survey of finances.

Wright declared the convention a success in every way and thanked other Clatsop county posts for cooperation in conducting the convention.
