Fine Cast In Picture At Rialto

With George Brent in the leading male role opposite Myrna Loy, who made such great successes with her characterization in "Manhattan Melodrama" and "The Thin Man," comes to the Rialto theater tomorrow in "Samboul Quest." Lionel Atwill and C. Henry Gordon are also featured.

As Annesmarie, the mysterious "Fraulein Doktor," who is accepted throughout Europe as a myth, Miss Loy proves conclusively she is one of the screen's most versatile actresses.

The plot hops with exciting rapidity from Berlin to Turkey and culminates in an amazing climax. "Fraulein Doktor" had sent Mata Hari on her last dangerous mission, knowing it would end in death—because Mata Hari had made the grave error of falling in love.

Yet the Fraulein, also a spy, committed the same error. The ensuing complications lift "Samboul Quest" into the front ranks of the year's best pictures.
