

GIVING TO NEEDY URGED BY HOOVER IN CHEST SPEECH

Neighborhood Life Has Been Lost in Transition to Urban Industrial Nation Says Former President

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 6.—(AP)—Characterizing the present as "the years of a great test," former President Herbert Hoover appealed here today to open hearted giving to the needy.

"In these days when so many think to rid humanity of its faults by discard also of its hard-won virtues," he said, "it is strengthening to see this great group intent upon re-organization to maintain the high virtue of charity."

While the former national chief executive addressed a joint meeting of 65 local service clubs in launching the community chest drive here, his appeal was not to Los Angeles alone. The program was broadcast over both national radio chains.

"We must recognize that in this last half century we have herded fifty million human beings into towns and cities where the whole setting is new and unaccustomed to our race.

"We have created these congested areas, with their thousand restrictions upon human life, through our swift transition of an agricultural people to an urban industrial nation. We thereby have lessened those acquaintances, friendships, and obligations of neighbors. Many of us are strangers to the house next door.

"That relation of country neighbors is lost wherein you borrowed two eggs and a pint of sugar, and lent a hand at raising the roof where your neighbor nursed your sick and took to their friends the orphan and the destitute. But more, we have lessened that character-building which comes not only from responsibility to the neighbor in life and death, but from family intimacy, from adventure of children in the fields and the brooks and the freedom of space."

"Chest Reorganization System." The community chest as a method of organization, Mr. Hoover said, no longer requires either explanation or defense.

"It is a mobilization and concentration of effort that has demonstrated its worth over years in all our great cities," he declared. "It has proved its value in more effective support and wiser administration of those hundreds of institutions which are so necessary a part of community life.

"But the community chest, caring for the multitude of institutions which you represent, stands for something far more than efficiency in the collection and disbursement of funds. It is a magnificent manifestation of the great heart of the city.

"Thousands of families who are not reached by official agencies in those times are dependent upon you."

TWO MORE PLAN ENTER RACE FOR GOVERNOR'S JOB

Two more names are soon to be added to the list of those seriously trying for the job of Oregon's chief executive. Five men already are in the race.

H. H. Stallard, stalwart of the so-called "technocrat party," is another who would like to be governor. He urges repeal of "un-American criminal syndicalism laws." As governor, he declared, he would pardon anyone convicted under such laws. He likes the Townsend old-age pension plan.

In addition to these two, there was talk that Louis Olson, currently on bail on criminal syndicalism charges, plans to head a meeting called for Saturday night at which independent candidates will be nominated to run on a "workers' program."
