

HUNTING PERMITS TO BE NECESSARY IN FOREST AREAS

Forest Supervisor Karl L. Janouch stated today that owing to the extreme fire hazard which exists throughout the southwestern part of Oregon, it has been found necessary to close to entry all forest areas protected by the Umpqua, Siskiyou and Rogue River national forests, except by permit. This regulation will be in effect from September 19 until changes in weather conditions materially reduce the hazardous condition.

Permits will also be required of all residents living within the closed areas for hunting purposes.

Permits to enter the forest may be obtained at all ranger and guard stations. For the convenience of the public, about 49 CCC men will be used as special guards to issue permits, in addition to the regular stations. The men will be stationed at: South boundary at west side Klamath Lake highway; Fort Rock road at north end of Klamath Lake highway; South Park entrance; Clover Guard Station at junction of Clover Creek and Spencer Creek roads; Intake on Fish Lake road; Moore Ranch on Dead Indian Soda Springs road; Dead Indian road at the boundary of the National Forest; Hyatt Lake road at the boundary of the National Forest; Pinehurst; Junction of Fredenburg road and Klamath Falls-Ashland highway; U. S. Fish Hatchery at Butte Falls; Trail; Rogue Elk; Prospect; Whiskey Camp on Crater Lake highway; Applegate Store, north side road; Applegate Store, south side road; Summit of Jacksonville Hill; Sterling road at boundary of National Forest; Wagner Gap; Siskiyou Gap; Dutchman Summit.

Inasmuch as many hunters have planned vacations and trips and would be greatly inconvenienced in the event of complete closure to all entry, as has been employed in the past when such conditions existed, entry by registration has been substituted this year. All that will be necessary on the part of the public under this regulation, will be to register and obtain a permit. Mr. Janouch further stated that it is to be hoped that the public will appreciate the existing circumstances and the fact that we are attempting to keep the forest open as long as possible. In order to successfully protect the forest under this plan and not be forced to the complete closure regulation, it will be necessary to have the full cooperation on the part of hunters.

Violators of the above regulation will be punished by a fine of not more than $500, or imprisonment for not more than 12 months, or both.

Approval of the new regulation was expressed by local hunters and hunting authorities today, among whom were A. H. Banwell of the Chamber of Commerce, Vern VanDyke of Lamport's, Chel Hubbard of Hubbard Bros., and Al Piche. In view of the unusual conditions existing, some expressed surprise that forestry officials did not close the woods entirely, as has been done in the past.

In spite of the new regulations, many hunters are planning trips, the Greenspring and Butte Falls areas drawing the largest number of hunters. The eastern Oregon country, near Lakeview, also has its devotees, due to the possibility of bagging a mule-tail buck. R. E. Koozer and E. W. Winkle are among those planning trips to that section.

The deer are reported to be more plentiful this year, although the hunting will be more difficult than usual, on account of the dryness. Some hunters have already left for their favorite haunts, to establish camps where it will be possible to get drinking water.

More licenses have been issued to date than at the same time last year, many of the hunters stating that they preferred the Hayden mountain country, Evans creek divide, Fish Lake to Lake of the Woods, and the Applegate district to the aforementioned territories.

One place where old hunters go is the almost inaccessible reaches of the upper Applegate river, but the hunting there is said to be unusually difficult.

SEEK MORE DATA BEFORE REVOKING PINE CONE PERMIT

The State Liquor commission, in a letter today to the county court, requested presentation of additional evidence, if any, in the matter of the revocation of the license of the Pine Cone Inn.

The letter further stated that M. O. Besonette, owner and manager of the beer resort, had conferred with the liquor board at Portland last week, and asked that he be given a hearing. The resort is still operating, pending final decision. The state liquor commission revocation was made following filing of a petition, containing 100 signatures of people residing near the place, protesting against its operation.

It was reported that a counter-petition was being circulated, and signed, requesting that the Pine Cone be allowed to operate.

Manager Besonette conferred with county authorities last Saturday, and said he desired a hearing. The place is outside the jurisdiction of the county, and all matters pertaining to it rest with the state liquor commission. Some of the county officials take the position that if "one beer resort is to be regulated, all should be regulated," and "that the Pine Cone is no worse, or no better than similar resorts."

James T. Chinnock, a member of the legislature from Josephine county, said Sunday that the next session of the legislature would pass laws, providing stricter regulation of beer. He held this was necessary to thwart any return to prohibitory regulations being passed by the voters.

Some members of the county court and enforcement agencies made a private investigation of the Pine Cone and reported that "the music for dancing stopped at five minutes to midnight, and at 10 minutes to one, all patrons were told to drink up the beer on hand, as no more would be sold." One of the visitors was impressed by the emphatic manner in which the orders were given, and that there was no more noise and confusion than usually attendant upon a crowd of merry makers.

The Pine Cone has enjoyed wide popularity among Jackson county folks, and from the start did a heavy business.

Returns from Portland Visit

Miss Mary Hayes returned on the Oregonian this morning after a month's stay in Portland, where she visited with sorority sisters of Alpha Chi Omega.

National Guard Notes

Work has been completed on the new rifle range, located near the Hillcrest orchard, and firing of qualification courses commenced last Sunday. From now on and until the rainy season sets in, there will be considerable activity on the range every Sunday.

Recent promotions in company A, 186th Infantry, are as follows: James H. Smith, promoted to sergeant.

Ralph Glem, promoted to corporal. Arthur L. Schatz, promoted to corporal. Virgil Swanson, promoted to corporal.

Private Roy G. Love has been transferred to the inactive National Guard Reserve, according to a recent order published by the adjutant general's office.

Dr. W. G. Bishop of Medford, recently commissioned a first lieutenant in the Medical Reserve, U. S. A., has been designated as an additional medical examiner for the two local National Guard units.

Sergeant George F. Lindley is the new custodian of the Medford Armory, having been so designated at a recent meeting of the Medford Armory board.

Owing to a number of the members of the two local companies signing up in the CCC, there are a number of vacancies, and an effort is now under way to interest a number of high school students to enlist. High school credits are given for drills, and this, together with the pay received from the government, has been of invaluable assistance to many a high school student in the past.

MARGINAL LAND RESERVE PLAN TO BE GIVEN STUDY

The forestry department of the Oregon Planning Council of which County Judge Earl B. Day is a member, will meet within the fortnight to further consider plans for placing marginal lands in Oregon counties in a federal reserve, for re-forestation. The council held a meeting last week which Judge Day attended.

The counties have no funds for development of the lands, or their rehabilitation. The general plan is to have the government take over the lands, with remuneration to the counties, and use them in their social legislation plans.

There are thousands of acres in Jackson county which are classified as marginal lands. They have either been burned off, logged off, taken over by the county for taxes, or abandoned as unfit for agriculture.

Judge Day informed the meeting in Portland, that southern Oregon counties were vitally interested in the plan, and impressed upon his fellow-members necessity of taking no hasty action until there has been a thorough study of the situation.

Lands under the Oregon-California grants come under the classification and Judge Day held that O-C land grant monies, now held in abeyance, are involved. Eighteen western counties are vitally interested in this angle of the issue. Through the efforts of Judge Day, the council deferred any speedy action.
