Here Sunday

Reunited for the first time since their initial co-starring venture made "State Fair" memorable, Janet Gaylor and Lew Ayres will be seen as the gay young sweethearts of "Servants' Entrance" coming to the Craterian theater Sunday.

In their newest roles Janet portrays a merry million-hess of an automobile manufacturer who goes from riches to poverty and back again, while Lew is a chauffeur who goes from poverty to riches. Starting from opposite rungs of the social ladder, they meet at the bottom. The climb upward is fraught with humorous and fascinating adventures.

Janet's descent to poverty is motivated by a desire to become a useful woman—to learn to cook, sew, bake a cake and take care of babies. So she disappears through the front door of her own palatial home, and makes her way to the servants' entrance of another, masquerading as a maid. It is thus that she meets Lew, a chauffeur with an inventive turn of mind whose passion is a new type of motorboat. To win his love, and to make him capitalize his invention without revealing her identity, become Janet's amusing problems.

of the story develops upon George Bancroft and Frances Dee.

Rialto Star

Comedy relief is very seldom injected into a western picture that is otherwise abounding in thrills, action and hectic moments of suspense, but "The Lucky Texan," starring John Wayne at the Rialto theater today and Saturday, afforded the audience many uproarious moments through the antics of George Hayes, while disguised as an old woman.

"The Lucky Texan" is the entertaining story of a college graduate who goes west to live with his father's partner of by-gone days, according to his dying wish. When he arrives he finds conditions disreputable, due to the rustling activities of a gang of outlaws. However, a stroke of good fortune enables them to locate a gold mine and they thrive on their mining activities.

EAKIN HANDLING HUDSON'S HERE

Through an error in the September 19 issue of The Mail Tribune, Armstrong Motors, Inc., were listed as representatives in southern Oregon for Hudson and Terraplane automobiles. The name of Eakin Motor company should have appeared in this Hudson and Terraplane advertisement as Clyde Eakin has been dealer for this popular line for several months.

Mr. Eakin's firm, located at 103 S. Riverside, is now featuring the latest Hudson and Terraplane models. In Sunday's issue of The Mail Tribune an advertisement featuring these cars will be published by the Eakin Motor company.
