MEDFORD FIRMS HAVE NEW SIGN

Adding to the constantly increasing life and brilliance of the west side shopping district, a new Neon sign has been installed by Alexander's Grocery and the Liberty Market. The well known firms, located in the Liberty building at Main and Grape streets, have recently completely remodeled their location and now have one of Medford's newest-to-the-minute food stores. The up-to-date attractive sign is the final touch to this extensive remodeling and modernization program.

Alexander's Grocery, under the management of R. F. Alexander, pioneer Medford grocer, is now identified with the Independent Grocers' Alliance and was remodeled along the lines of typical 10A metropolitan stores.

The Model Bakery is also located in the Liberty building location which houses Alexander's Grocery and the Liberty Market.

MILK PRODUCERS, MARKET DEALERS TO MEET MONDAY

Milk dealers, producers and all others connected with the market milk business in Jackson and Josephine counties will meet at the court house auditorium tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock. E. O. Harlan, chairman of the Oregon state milk control board, with headquarters in Portland, and Burge W. Mason of Klamath Falls, member of the board, will be in charge of the meeting.

Mr. Harlan and Mr. Mason will speak before the gathering, as will Frank Van Dyke, president of the local organization of dairymen, whose subject will be the present situation regarding the Medford district.

Qualifications of dairymen who wish to get into the milk marketing business will be investigated and paying of monthly fees will be checked. The organization stated that some dairymen are lax in making these payments.

Mr. Harlan, who has been in Medford for the past few days to attend the mining congress meeting, seems much pleased with the milk business in this district, and says that it has shown an increase throughout the entire state during the past few months.

HANG ON TO LOAN SHARES IS ADVICE

In answer to inquiries to the corporation commissioner regarding the entrusting of building and loan shares to salesmen, Charles H. Carey, corporation commissioner, states: "Almost every day complaints are made to the corporation commissioner that one A. K. Wilson of Portland is getting assignments of building and loan shares from members. These assignments are taken in the name of Union Bond and Trust company. He does not pay anything more than one dollar to these members, but promises to pay them 50 per cent of 'all the net proceeds realized from the sale or adjustment of said certificates as and when received.'"

"Whether or not he makes fraudulent misrepresentations I cannot say, but doubtless he convinces them that he can do something for them or they would not sign. I do not believe he can do anything whatever to justify giving him such assignments as the corporation department is doing without charge, all that anyone can do in the interest of the members."

MINING CONGRESS NAMES DR. SMITH OF OREGON CHIEF

University Geologist Honored—State-Wide Mine Development Program Favored—Lydiard Speaks

Dr. Warren B. Smith, University of Oregon geologist, was elected president of the Oregon Mining Congress at the annual state convention held in the court house auditorium yesterday by an attendance of 125 delegates from all parts of the state. B. K. Lawson, Portland chief of police, was re-elected vice-president, and E. G. Harlan of Eugene was re-elected secretary-treasurer.

President Smith, who succeeds R. M. Betts of Eugene, addressed the congress in the afternoon session on a comprehensive statewide program for mining development, and Prof. J. H. Batcheller of the Oregon State college mining department spoke on the work of the Pacific Northwest Research Institute as it applies to mining. The morning session was devoted to an executive meeting, at which time a six-point program for the coming year's work was presented.

A special legislative committee, with Mr. Lawson as chairman, was appointed to present a legislative program to the mining committees of the house of representatives and senate at the next state legislature. The next convention of the mining congress will be held at Salem in the first week of January, 1935.

W. H. Lydiard of Medford, member of the state mining board appointed by Governor Meier, spoke on the value of the mining industry during the depression in providing work for hundreds of men who might otherwise have been unemployed.

"During the depression," he said, "mines produced payrolls while other industries failed. Hundreds of people were able to pay their rent and buy food through money they obtained by prospecting." He added that if the important business men of a community had a real understanding of mining and its possibilities, the industry could be developed far more rapidly than under present conditions.

Albert Burch, also of Medford, former member of the state mining board, also talked, discussing the natural conditions under which mining men in Oregon work, hampered by topographical ruggedness and inaccessibility of much of the state's mineral resources.

An inventory of all the existing mineral resources of the state will be taken, it was decided at the executive session, which also made provisions for a mineral and geological survey of the state as another part of its six-point program. The congress pledged its support to the Pacific Northwest Research Institute, which is conducted by the federal government with Marshall Dana of Portland at its head.

State and federal subsidies for deservicing and approved mineral prospects were discussed and provisions were made for field service and mine inspection throughout the state. It was also decided to form a mining board to approve stock selling permits before they are issued by the corporation department.

Resolutions passed at the convention were as follows: "1. That the board of higher education be thanked for making available the services of Professor Batcheller as secretary of the state mining board."

"2. That the congress go on record as making a list of approved sayers in the state, and that a list of reliable ones be furnished."

"3. That the congress advocate the repeal of the present 40-day lien law."

"4. That there be a reduction of freight rates on ore and concentrates, as present rates retard the development of the mining industry."

"5. That funds from state vocational education be provided for mining instruction, such as panning, etc., and for field service."

"6. That highway bodies—county, state and federal—be asked to aid in building roads to inaccessible mining properties."

NOTED AUTHOR IS AIRPORT VISITOR

After almost four months of cruising Alaskan waters, Stewart Edward White, author of "The Forty-Niners," "Dog Days" and "Other stories," passed through Medford yesterday with Mrs. White aboard a United States Lines plane, en route home to Burlingame, Cal.

Mr. and Mrs. White returned to Seattle three days ago aboard their yacht, "Kuru," after spending what the author described as "the finest summer I've been in Alaska in the twelve years I've been going there." Instead of gathering material for a new book, he collected trout, salmon and photographs of bear.

"We saw seventy-one bear, the majority of which we 'shot' with our cameras," he smiled. "That might be called pretty fair hunting."

The writer revealed that his latest story, "Rancheros," soon is to appear in the Saturday Evening Post. Meanwhile, he's going to work on a new story as soon as he gets home.

I Bought a Terraplane I have paid three times as much for an automobile that was not nearly so comfortable to ride in and handle as my Terraplane. Performance is great; the economy is great. —WM. F. HOWARD, Rochester, N. Y.

I Bought a Terraplane We both being avid sportsmen, we both selected a Terraplane, because its lines must be nearly perfect to give us the pleasure and economy we desired. We have covered between 19 and 23 miles per gallon on trips. —MR. & MRS. PAUL B. EATON, Charlotte, N. C.

I Bought a Hudson I have owned at least 25 cars. I am thoroughly satisfied with my judgment in purchasing your car. As it has performance, economy, comfort and price. —HENRY M. MCQUAUGHY, Seattle.

Does it pay to take your time about buying a car? Just ask Hudson and Terraplane owners. Of the thousands of men and women who have bought new Hudsons and Terraplanes this year, 5 out of every 8 looked at several other makes of cars before they decided.

They'll tell you how much you'll be ahead if you "don't buy any car too hurriedly."

We'll be glad to show you more owners' statements like these above, as well as sworn affidavits to certify the economy and low upkeep cost enjoyed by owners of Hudson-built cars.

You'll be interested, also, in the facts about the recent nation-wide "Challenge Tests." Only one competing car dared accept a wide open challenge to prove economy and performance—and was beaten in every test.
