The trouble with most so-called "westerns" is that they are built to a formula by writers who only write what they can remember. Zane Grey's formula is different. He goes to the source of all good fiction—to life itself, and records what he finds. The result, in "The Dude Rancher" would seem to be a script of unusual merricate on the attempted theft of an easterner's heritage by inscrupulous operators of a great western ranch.

The boy goes weat to claim his legacy—and stays to battle for it and to win the girl he loves. But this does not happen until the audience has been thrilled with the encounters, warmed by genuine romance, amused by healthy, whole-some humor and delighted with the uniformity excellent performance registered by a notable cast.

Harold Lloyd in Craterian Comedy Pleases Audience

Abandoning the adolescent roles, the stunts and paraphernalla which first helped to make him one of the world's outstanding motion picture comedians, Harold Lloyd returned to the screen of the Craterian theater yeaterday, a new, full-grown manand audiences, their faces agiow with laughter, and their cheeks with intermittent tears, bid his a lusty, heartfelt welcome!

For in "The Cata-Paw," his latest vehicle in many many months (which must have been dull indeed without him), he is an unexpectedly different Harold Lloyd, a type of comedian whom film audiences will not be prone to forget or tire of so casily.

Not only is this Harold Lloyd's finest story, but he also has surrounded it with what is by far his best cast of supporting players, including as it does such outstanding performers as Una Merkel, George Barbler, Nat Pendleton, Alan Dinehart, Grant Mitchell, Grace Bradley and others.
