KIDNAP SUSPECT SHAPES WEAPON FROM A SPOON

didn't know anything about the spoon.

"He immediately was taken out of his cell, searched and stripped. His cell was inspected minutely and no evidence of the spoon was discovered until the jailer looked in the wash bowl and toilet."

While Hanley would not say what use he thought Hauptmann intended to make of the pieces of the spoon, he did state that the bowl might have been fashioned into a defensive weapon or one with which Hauptmann might have done violence to himself. The handle of the spoon had been curved into a hook.

"Paper Dishes Now
"He is now eating on paper dishes," Hanley said, "and he will use paper spoons as long as we have them."

District Attorney Samuel J. Foley was with Hanley when he made the announcement. Foley, in reply to an inquiry, said he had not decided whether he would have a psychiatrist examine Hauptmann, move that the defense attorney has announced he intends to make.

The sheriff said about thirty minutes elapsed between the time Hauptmann was given the spoon and the time it was missed. In that time the prisoner had broken it into four pieces and sharpened the bowl to "razor edge" by rubbing it against the steel frame of the cot.

The pieces were discovered after a plumber was called.

Three of them were in the toilet bowl and the fourth was in the drain of the wash basin.

Moved to New Cell
Since Hauptmann was placed in the Bronx county jail he has occupied a cell on the second tier, completely isolated from the other prisoners. After today's incident of the spoon he was moved to another cell in the same tier, still with no other prisoners near him.

Hanley said that a special guard watches the prisoner and it is continually changed a new guard taking up his post every hour.

NEW YORK, Sept. 28.—(AP)—Attorney General David T. Wilentz of New Jersey, conferred with District Attorney Samuel J. Foley today on the case of Bruno Richard Hauptmann, indicted for extortion in the Lindbergh kidnap case, and said New Jersey would ask for extradition of the prisoner when the investigation of the New Jersey case was complete.

He said the purpose of his conference with the district attorney was a general discussion of the case.

"Will New Jersey ask extradition before Hauptmann goes to trial in the Bronx?" he was asked.

"When the investigation of the New Jersey case is complete, New Jersey will ask for extradition," Wilentz answered.

MILLIONS OF OYSTERS FOR STEW

SOUTH BEND, WASH.
THE HOME OF THE
WILLAPA OYSTER

Proclaimed by residents of South Bend, Wash., as the world's largest oyster stew, 100 gallons of the bivalves, 300 gallons of milk and 60 pounds of butter were poured into a big pan and cooked for 5000 hungry visitors. Japanese oysters have been successfully transplanted to the area and the industry has assumed major proportions. Some of the cooks are shown filling the outdoor pan. (Associated Press Photo)

Browned Sliced Egg Plant
1 medium sized egg plant.
4 tablespoons salt.
1 egg.
2 tablespoons water.
1/2 cup crumba.
4 tablespoons fat.
1/2 teaspoon onion salt.
1/4 teaspoon celery salt.
1/4 teaspoon paprika.

Cut egg plant into one-inch cross-way slices. Cut off peels. Sprinkle with salt and arrange slices on top each other. Let stand one hour. Rinse with cold water. Dip in crumba, in egg mixed with water and again in crumba. Heat fat in frying pan. Add and quickly brown egg plant. Add rest of ingredients and cover and cook slowly 10 minutes or until very tender when tested with fork. Arrange with edges overlapping on serving platter. Surround with creamed ham.

- 3 tablespoons butter.

So Women don't know their own Minds?

She's not surprised if sweet peas appear in the tomato patch

LET'S end that ridiculous accusation once and for all. No doubt some man started it. For example, Dorothy Shaw may not know her own mind about her garden.

That's natural. It's because in her garden she likes adventure. She's not surprised if sweet peas in the tomato patch.

But she's through with adventure when it comes to coffee. She knows her own mind there! And she knows that Hills Bros. Coffee gives her and her husband uniform flavor delight. Hills Bros.' exclusive Controlled Roasting Process assures uniform perfection of flavor, day after day. Year after year. And that's why the Shaws have always ordered Hills Bros. Coffee without ever changing—even if the Shaw garden changes every year!

The Shaws have always ordered Hills Bros. without ever changing
