RICHBERG FLAYS THOSE WHO URGE BUDGET BALANCE

to declare that we should not have saved millions of people from destitution, suffering and actual starvation last winter, and that in the face of this demand for help should have cut expenses and balanced the budget?

Would Breed Revolt.
"Communists cannot produce a revolution in this country, but a blind, reactionary, inhumane government could breed a revolt in 30 days by adopting such a program."

Touching on monetary policy, he said the Roosevelt dollar "by all tests of stable purchasing power should be regarded as exceptionally sound."

He said the administration is "dedicated, heart and soul, to the preservation of our ancient political liberties and to the maintenance of a political economic system of competitive individualism, civilized by a social conscience."

As for his own critics, Richberg asserted it made him "writhe to see myself cartooned carrying a red flag and to see myself described as a socialist, when I have a consistent record of having all my life bitterly opposed the theories and programs of state socialism."

Speech Draws Answers.
Richberg's speech, which was broad, cast, devoted particular attention to price and production control phases of NRA codes.

"When certain statements of mine in Washington a few days ago were thought to foreshadow the early end of any restraints upon production volume or price competition," he said, "I received a terrifying amount of approval and condemnation within 24 hours."

"Let me now express most emphatically my opinion that no one who has an adequate knowledge of this problem would venture to lay down any formula or principle to be applied rigidly in the making or revision of all codes. It would be a major calamity to abandon the efforts which, although only partially successful, have brought better order and health to certain industries. . . ."

"These gains must not be lost. But their preservation is in some cases dependent upon the maintenance of controls to which many business men are sincerely opposed and upon which the public looks generally with suspicion and frequently with positive hostility. In my opinion much of this suspicion and hostility can be dispelled if two principles are made effective."

Line Must Be Drawn.
"First, there should be a clear line

To Conduct Cooking School

HESTER HEATH.

Known throughout the west as a home economist of outstanding ability, Hester Heath has been secured to conduct The Mail Tribune's free cooking school this week. Her cooking schools have appealed to all housewives, regardless of their home cooking facilities. . . . Medford and Rogue River valley women will like Miss Heath. . . . her pleasing personality and her ability as a demonstrator will win the enthusiastic approval of everyone here! "Hester Heath" is her professional name, and women here will remember her as Clara Miller Sexton, who conducted a Tribune school here first in 1926, as well as the conductor of the very successful schools at the Holly in 1932 and at the Craterian last year.

drawn between the right of businessmen to associate freely for the preservation of fair competition and the illegality of associations for the purpose of preventing or restricting fair competition.

"The second principle which I believe should be made effective is this: Whenever, in order to conserve natural resources, or to maintain decent wages and hours and to protect a fair return on investments or to prevent clearly unfair competition, it is found necessary to exert any restraints upon volume or production or price competition, two safeguards should be employed. The first is formulation and administration of such code provisions by those truly representative of a large majority of the volume of business and of the number of separate enterprises engaged therein. The second is a close and detailed supervision of the process of self-regulation by competent and impartial representatives of the public."

Women Golfers In Tourney Tomorrow

Glimpses of Tribune's Last School

Three thousand eight hundred and twenty people attended the Mail Tribune's outstanding cooking school conducted at the Craterian theatre last year and, because of the splendid programs, many were turned away because of the crowds. This school was also conducted by Hester Heath who will preside at the cookery lessons this week. Top: Glimpse of the crowd entering the Craterian for the 1933 school. Center: Interior view of the stage showing the school opening at 2 p. m. tomorrow. Promises to be even more entertaining than last year's successful sessions. MEDFORD EAGLES SHOW LARGE GAIN

The October issue of The Eagle Magazine, carrying a chart of the gains shown throughout the country in organizations during the month of August, shows that the Medforderie ranks eleventh in the United States, with a total increase of 71 members for that month. Medford is given two stars in the ranking chart, the same number accredited such cities as Columbus, Ohio, and San Diego, Cal. The city of Columbus, Ohio, showed an increase of 74, but three more than the Medford gain.

Although more recently organized than in most of the other states, the Oregon aeries of F. O. E. have increased greatly in number and size during the past few months, with the Medford organization ranking first in the state.

LOW RAIL RATE FOR GRID GAME

A. S. Rosenbaum, district agent for Southern Pacific lines, announced today that if 15 or more from Medford desire to make the trip to Portland for the U. of O.—Washington football game Saturday at Multnomah stadium, a round trip ticket may be purchased for $7.25. As considerable interest in this community is being shown in the approaching game, it is Mrs. Rosenbaum's belief that many will take advantage of these exceedingly low rates. Those wishing to make the trip should notify the agent at the Southern Pacific depot, Mr. Rosenbaum said.

Mr. and Mrs. Cecil King of Bufo Falls are the parents of a baby boy weighing 9 pounds, 5 1/4 ounces, born this morning at the Sacred Heart hospital.
