St. Joseph puffed a railway train bearing special mail bags from New York. A waiting rider transferred them to his saddle and sped away to the west. For ten days and nights thereafter, horses' hoofs pounded constantly over the trail—now quietly in soft sand, now clattering across stony mountain passes—until the mail arrived in San Francisco. It was done in a little over ten days. The next trip took two weeks, but later several trips were made in 9 days.

Carried Lincoln's Inaugural Address "That same April 3, mail started from San Francisco eastward, going to Sacramento by boat. There a daring rider tightened his saddle girths, strapped on the pouches, and was off. He covered the first 20 miles in 55 minutes, traveled 35 miles farther and relayed the bags to a waiting rider. The second rode past the summit of the Sierra Nevada, where the next man took up the ride. The first three men covered a total distance of 185 miles, part of which was through 30 feet of snow; they did it in 15 hours and 30 minutes! From there five others followed one another, galloping through Ruby Valley, Deep Creek Valley, Rush Valley, and Camp Floyd at Salt Lake City. Eastward from the Mormon settlement the mail was hurried to Saint Joseph, where the town went wild with excitement over the successful undertaking.

"Incredible as it may seem, the quickest time ever made by the Pony Express was in winter weather. The document transmitted was President Lincoln's inaugural message of March 4, 1861. It was borne over 2,000 miles in seven days and 17 hours, said to be the fastest long distance horse-back riding ever done.

PLACE MARKER AT HISTORIC STATION ON PONY EXPRESS

Sun Blistered Town in Utah Erects Shaft On Spot Where Riders Changed Horses Seventy Years Ago

"Thapah, sun-blistered town in Utah's Deep Creek valley, recently turned back the pages of 70 years' history and dedicated a shaft marking the location of the Pony Express station which was the forerunner of the town. The village, home of 213 residents, lies at the edge of a desert, about five miles east of the Utah-Nevada boundary.

"This 'station' was one of the 120 established between St. Joseph, Missouri, and San Francisco. In an effort to cut in half the time necessary to communicate between the east and west coasts of the United States," says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society. "It was in this region that Indians, by frequent attacks, nearly caused the abandonment of the Pony Express within two months after it was established.

Pony Express Inaugurated in 1860 "By 1860 the outside edges of the continent had been colonized and whitemen's activities penetrated inland from the east as far as the Missouri river. But between 'Saint Jo' and San Francisco lay a forbidding 1,066-mile expanse—Indian infested plains of Kansas and Nebraska, mountains of Colorado and Wyoming, and deserts of Utah and Nevada.

At that time, men generally linked the two jagged edges of the nation by the circuitous 28-day route—sailing from New York to Panama, traveling by mule train across the isthmus, then taking ship to San Francisco.

"But the nation was growing. Men in the west sought closer contact with those in the east. So was born the Pony Express to brave the wilds of the direct route, St. Joseph to San Francisco.

"On April 3, 1860, all was ready for a simultaneous start from the two ends of the line. From the east into his fleet-footed pony to outdistance his pursuers. Usually this could be done, unless, as happened sometimes, both rider and horse were pressed into double duty when the rider of the next stretch had been killed or injured.

"Buffalo Bill' Cody made the longest ride recorded by the Pony Express. He had ridden 75 miles over his own run, only to find that the man who should have relieved him had been killed the night before. The station master urged Cody to ride the vacant route. It was an 85-mile stretch, across dangerous territory, but he did it, making every station on time. With but a moment's rest on reaching the final post, he took the return pouch and started back to his initial station. He made the round trip of 312 miles on scheduled time. A week later, Indians killed one of the station masters on Cody's route and stole all the horses. When Buffalo Bill arrived, there was no change of mount, and, pursued by redskins most of the way, he had to ride his panting horse at top speed 12 miles to the next station.

"Over this route history was both carried and made for nearly a year and a half, until the telegraph was finally stretched from coast to coast on October 24, 1861. The Pony Express required nearly 800 horses, 190 stations, 300 men to care for the stations and 80 daring riders. During those long months, day and night, through Indian haunts, in winter's snow and summer's sun, galloping hoofs pounded the trail from east to west, from west to east."

To All Who Suffer Stomach Distress, Gas and Indigestion

Money Back If One Bottle of Dare's Mentha Pepsin Doesn't Do You More Good Than Anything You Ever Used. You can be so distressed with gas and fullness and bloating from an over-worked, abused or weak stomach that you think your heart is going to stop beating. Your stomach may be so distended that your breathing is short and gassy. You think perhaps you are suffocating. You are dizzy and pray for quick relief—what's to be done? Just one tablespoonful of Dare's Mentha Pepsin and speedily the gas disappears, the pressing on the heart ceases and you can breathe deep and naturally. Oh! What blessed relief; but why not get rid of such attacks altogether? Why have them at all? With this wonderful medicine you can overcome dyspepsia, or that condition of faulty digestion that keeps the stomach in constant rebellion and one bottle will prove it. Over 6,000 bottles sold in one Small New Jersey town in one year—and the best druggists the country over concede that its phenomenal sales are due to the fact that most cases are promptly relieved. Ask for Dare's Mentha Pepsin, a pleasant to take health-building stomach elixir that regular pharmacists anywhere in America guarantee.
