

Post Delphians Present Modern Version Romeo

(By Iva Sewell Edwards.)
It was a warm October afternoon, and richly tinted autumn leaves fell in the garden, among the remaining flowers. This was the setting, at the home of Mrs. Glen Fabrick on Crater Lake avenue, that the Post Delphians selected for the presentation yesterday of Miss Helen Norris' comedy-drama, "Romeo and Juliet Up-to-Date."
Inspired by the present revival of Shakespeare, Miss Norris selected this favorite play, from which to bring her theme. Members of the club were cast in the three-act production, and all were highly complimented for the finished manner in which they carried their roles.
It was Mrs. A. J. Hanby who took the part of Nan, housekeeper at the Meredith home, who was referred to as "the family boss," and was constantly discussing the romantic turn her theme. Miss Norris, 14-year-old member of the family had taken, due to reading Shakespeare.
Jean, played by Mrs. Royal E. Bebb, was the young miss who arranged for Nan's elopement with her girlhood sweetheart, Jake (unbeknown to Nan). Elopements, Jean thought, were "unplebian," and she was somewhat disappointed when Nan refused to come down the ladder Jean had placed beneath her window, and depart with Jake.
It was Jean, also, who had all the worries about the romance of her older sister, Catherine, portrayed by Mrs. C. I. Drummond. Catherine had quite a time deciding whether it was Spencer Cummings, the poet, with whom she was in love, or young Dr. Jim Abbott. Mrs. Louis B. Humphry successfully fulfilled this part.

Dick Meredith, Jean's and Catherine's brother, who couldn't get excited about any of the family romances, was of little help to Jean in the unsuccessfully planned elopement. Dick's individuality was expressed in the manner he wore his cap. Mrs. Aetha Vawter received applause for taking this part, and Mrs. R. C. Mulholland was credited with many of the laughs for the afternoon.
Jean, however, was pleased with Catherine's acceptance of Dr. Jim, and was glad to know she didn't elope with Spencer on the night Jean had planned Nan's getaway.
Miss Norris, author of the fine play, was a guest at the meeting Thursday afternoon, and was highly complimented by each of the members for her exceptional production, which she had also directed. Miss Norris has written a number of radio plays which have been presented throughout the country, by leading stations.
The large group of Post Delphians and their invited guests were well pleased with the fine entertainment, and Mrs. Fabrick was thanked for her hospitality.
Luncheon was enjoyed in the garden at noon and as a part of the afternoon program, Mrs. Lyle F. Wilcox gave an interesting paper on the Passion Play at Oberammergau. She also showed a collection of pictures from that German village. Mrs. Laura West, president, was in charge of the meeting.

SCHOOL DISTRICTS SUBMIT BUDGETS

The Kenwood school district yesterday submitted its school budget for the year and seeks $2340.55 by special levy for tuition and transportation of school children.
Other districts submitting budgets the past week, were the Howard school, asking $6410 for maintenance and expense; the Pinehurst district for $2340.35 for maintenance and retirement of bonded indebtedness; Colerain $1693 for maintenance; and the Talent district $8380 for maintenance and retirement of bonded indebtedness.

EDISON MARSHALL STORY IN LIBERTY

"The Marquis Plays Poker" is the title of the new story by Edison Marshall, which is appearing in this week's Liberty. Marshall, who attended school here and returns every year or two to visit relatives and friends, is now en route to Tibet in Central Asia to gather material for a new novel.
Marshall won acclaim in 1921 when he was awarded the O. Henry short story prize with "The Heart of Little Shikara." He is said to be the highest paid serial writer today, having a contract with the Hearst syndicate for a number of novels.
