

FLORA THURSTON GUEST TALKER AT PARENTS SCHOOL

Miss Flora Thurston, until recently executive secretary of the National Council of Parent Education, New York city, will be the guest speaker at the School for Parents to be held at 9:45 a. m. and 1:30 p. m. in the courthouse auditorium, October 19.

"This promises to be the finest school for parents ever sponsored by the home extension service in Jackson county," says Mabel C. Mack, acting state leader of home economic extension. "It is a privilege and opportunity for every homemaker to have Miss Thurston in Oregon."

Miss Thurston is an educator of national prominence, she has had wide experience in the field of parent education work, having graduated from Columbia university, and recently completed a two year fellowship at Columbia for child development research under the National Research committee. Miss Thurston is now working part time at Oregon State college for one year as acting professor of child development and parent education while completing work for her Ph. D. degree.

Miss Thurston is particularly interested in conference and discussion in leadership training. She was a member of the committee on family life and parent education, White House conference on Child Health and Protection, and later a member of the committee on family life of the President's conference on home building and home ownership.

At the school for parents next Friday morning Miss Thurston will speak on "Exploring New Values in Family Life." In the afternoon her subject will be "Handy Life, The New Cooperative." Miss Thurston writes in regard to these problems so vital to her:

"We sometimes think that whatever concerns the family and home life ought not to change. We feel that what has been good will always be good, and that whatever difficulties we have now are the result of forsaking the traditional ways of living families. When trouble comes bringing in its wake many hardships and drastic changes in our living, families tend to act in one of three ways. Some go back to the old-fashioned ways of family rule, where father takes the reins and all the rest of the family fall in line, with little chance for developing initiative and responsibility, and a good deal of chance for learning resentment and despair.

"Some families go to pieces altogether because they are unable to stand the added strain. The third kind of family has the courage to face new problems by becoming the "new cooperative." It dares to find new ways of meeting hardships, by learning how to work together. It finds a kind of security within the home which is impossible to find outside. It kindles new hope and discovers new values."

Mrs. Mabel C. Mack will open the "Recreation in the Home." There will be a helpful exhibit and display of table games and home play equipment.

All Parent-Teachers, Women's clubs and extension units are cooperating in making this school an inspirational and helpful occasion for the homemakers of Jackson and Josephine counties.

Those wishing to remain for luncheon are asked to bring their individual lunches and a cup. The home extension service will serve coffee.

The county executive committee will serve tea at the close of the school, honoring Miss Thurston and giving those present an opportunity to meet and speak to Miss Thurston personally.

PERIL SEEN IN AMENDMENT TO MEDICAL LAWS

PORTLAND, Ore.—(Sp.)—"With one of Oregon's most prized possessions—her high standards of public health—endangered, citizens are awakening to the vital importance of defeating the Healing Arts constitutional amendment, which comes before the voters in the November election."

So declared the Rev. Axel M. Green, secretary of the committee for preservation of Oregon's hospital standards and workmen's compensation law, speaking before a group of representative business, professional and club leaders today. The volunteer workers had assembled to launch a vigorous campaign of education to acquaint the public with the revolutionary character of the proposed constitutional amendment.

Holds Three-Way Threat

"If passed, this amendment, which is sponsored wholly by self-seeking interests," said Rev. Green, "would jeopardize our present Workmen's Compensation law; nullify the basic science law, which protects our citizens against the charlatan and the quack; and lower the high hospital standards which have won national recognition for Oregon."

"This Healing Arts amendment seeks to take away from our higher board of education the right to examine applicants for licenses to practice medicine, chiropractic, naturopathic or other branches of the healing arts, and give that right over to boards made up of members of the respective groups. In effect it completely nullifies our basic science law which provides that persons seeking licenses to practice any form of healing, except healing by prayer of spiritual means, must prove to persons competent to judge that they know the fundamentals of anatomy, physiology, chemistry and hygiene.

Protect the Sick

"Surely the sick and suffering are entitled to that much protection—the protection of knowing that the persons who take their money and promise to help them, know something about the human body and the common laws of health!"

Failure to defeat the proposed Healing Arts amendment will set health standards in Oregon back 50 years. In the opinion of the civic leaders who are waging the campaign against its passage.

A provision of the amendment which compels hospitals to permit any doctor, however incompetent, to treat serious cases of illness, perform surgery, care for contagious diseases and attend mothers in childbirth, is held to be particularly dangerous and vicious by those opposing the amendment.

Under present laws, which require hospitals to select competent staff doctors and to maintain high standards of practice, Oregon has attained a high place among states of the union with respect to public health and has one of the lowest infant mortality rates in the entire country.

No least of the evils charged against the proposed Healing Arts Constitutional amendment by those who oppose it is the belief of many industrial, business and organization leaders that it would completely wreck Oregon's Workmen's Compensation act.

Would Drop Bars

The splendid success of this law, as administered by the Industrial Accident commission, is attributed by observers to the excellent hospital and medical facilities, that have been made available to injured workers. Through a high standard of treatment, workers have been restored in a majority of cases to health and a self-sustaining basis. Thus, the cost to employers has been held within reasonable limits.

But let down the bars, make it possible for unsuspecting workers to fall prey to "diploma-mill" doctors, interested solely in private gain, and become patients of sub-standard hospitals, and costs will become so great as to undermine and wreck the entire compensation structure, opponents of the amendment fear. Industrial leaders generally are joining with workers in seeking to defeat the amendment at the November election, according to the committee for preservation of Oregon hospital standards and workmen's compensation law.

EAGLES TO HOLD CANDIDATE NIGHT

At a regular meeting of the Crater Lake Aerle No. 2093 of the Fraternal Order of Eagles held on Friday night many matters of importance were brought up for discussion, it was announced by officers of the organization yesterday morning.

By unanimous motion of the members a letter is being prepared for submission to the city council urging that the city of Medford purchase an inhalator.

It is believed by local Eagles that the small cost for this apparatus will more than offset the saving of life from time to time.

It was also decided to make Friday, October 20th, candidate night at which time all persons running for office will be asked to attend and give a three minute talk.

In honor of vice president, George Coates, a membership campaign will be started immediately to terminate on November 9th, at which time a large initiation will be held. Officers of the lodge believe that with an intensive campaign for another month at least 100 will be added to the membership which at the present time exceeds 600. A notice recently received from the national office shows that for the year July 1, 1933, to July 1, 1934, Medford Aerle ranks 9th in the United States of America for membership increase. The cities in America which beat Medford's record are those with a far greater population than this city.

Members of the local Aerle who are interested in the organization of a band are asked to communicate with Sebastian Apollo immediately, as it is the intention of the local Aerle to organize a band during the coming winter.

Germany's domestic trade in household and kitchen utensils has shown a marked improvement this year but exports from Germany of those articles have maintained a downward trend.

Cities having the lowest proportionate street light bills have the highest number of night traffic fatalities, according to H. E. Simpson, of the National Bureau of Casualty and Surety Underwriters.

Three-seated airplanes are more numerous among civil aircraft in the United States than planes of any other capacity, according to a survey by the bureau of air commerce.

General Petroleum Issues Manual on Safe Driving

Receiving the hearty commendation of A. E. Shaver of the Oregon State Motor Association, and Captain Frank Evin, at right, commanding the traffic division of the Portland Police Department, for General Petroleum's issuance of "Manual on Safe Driving" to its employees, Albert E. Horn, Jr., at left, Oregon general manager for the General Petroleum Corporation, marketers of Mobilgas and Mobiloil, pledges the company's full support in the present safety campaign.

"Let's Quit Killing" is the telling slogan of the educational safety drive sponsored by the association. The safety car carries "the voice of safety" to assemblies of Portland school children daily. It is planned to send it on a tour of all the principal cities and towns in Oregon.

The "Let's Quit Killing" car, sensational factor in the Oregon State Motor Association's safety drive, is to appear in major cities and towns throughout Oregon, according to plans of the motor association, it has been announced by Ray Conway, the organization's secretary-manager.

The campaign, now being successfully conducted in Portland, features appearances of the striking white car at assemblies of school children, coupled with educational talks on safety; also "the voice of safety" which booms forth from the car as it proceeds through traffic, publicly "bawling out" any motorist who is seen violating any safe driving practice.

TAKES LEAD

Among organizations taking the lead in cooperating with the motor association in its safety drive is the General Petroleum Corporation, marketers of Mobilgas and Mobiloil, which has issued a "Manual of Safe Driving" to all of its employees.

"General Petroleum pledges its full support in making the public safety conscious," states Albert E. Horn, Jr., Oregon general manager, "and our employees throughout Oregon and the entire West are being carefully instructed in safe driving practices."

TOLL INCREASES

"The imperative need for safety education," Horn said, "has been emphasized nationally by recent proclamations of the governors of 44 states. The motor accident death toll for 1934 will show an increase of 30 per cent over 1933, according to recent estimate made by the 33rd National Safety Council, held in Cleveland, Ohio. The winter months, with children attending school and with weather conditions increasing the hazards of driving, call for every motorist to keep the thought of safety constantly in mind."
