

OREGON TO GAIN THREE MILLIONS IN AAA PROGRAM

Distribution Of Huge Sum Will Start Soon Under Provisions of Wheat and Corn - Hog Adjustment.

CORVALLIS.—(Sp.)—Agricultural adjustment benefit payments in excess of $3,000,000 are scheduled to be distributed to Oregon farmers during October and early November under provisions of the wheat and corn adjustment programs, according to figures compiled by the Oregon Extension service. These payments, all made from the receipts from federal processing taxes, are to compensate Oregon growers for restricting their production in line with the national plan for these commodities.

The amount to be received under the corn-hog plan is more than twice as much as would have been due Oregon farmers under the original state production figure assigned by the bureau of crop estimates, though it is still below the figure considered just by many county allotment committees and the state college extension service.

229,165 Hogs Allowed

The final base production figure allowed Oregon is 229,165 hogs for the total of all contracts. This figure compares with 108,250 total contract base given in the first estimate of 142,250 for the entire state including those hogs not under contract. On the other hand it falls more than 20,000 hogs short of the 250,000 which the extension officials considered the absolute minimum which could justly be assigned as Oregon's quota.

While the summer-long effort of the farmer leaders and extension service representatives to obtain a just quota for Oregon was not entirely successful, the outcome was a considerable gain even over what was declared to be the third and "final" quota of 212,000 hogs, points out F. L. Ballard, vice-director of the extension service.

Mr. Ballard adds that the troubles encountered in Oregon and a number of other states in carrying through the corn-hog program were not the fault of the plan itself, which was fundamentally sound, but arose from poor administration of the plan in this state by some representatives of the corn-hog section.

Corn-Hog Payments Large

Corn-hog benefit payments authorized for Oregon now total $659,365 of which two-fifths is payable at once. Under the original quota that would have been less than half that sum. Baker and Union are the first Oregon counties to receive the first payment checks.

Final wheat payments are estimated at $634,800 in this state, while the first 1934 wheat payment, to be distributed immediately after the former, is estimated at $1,820,427, making a total distribution for the next month or so of more than three million dollars in this state.

Meanwhile county corn-hog committees have completed arrangements for taking the referendum among contract signers on the twin questions of continuing some corn-hog plan for 1935 and of working out a single contract for all grains and livestock starting in 1936. Votes will be taken in one or two meetings in each county before October 18.

Samson Installs Triangle Line Of Feeds At Store

As the result of a steady improvement in business during the past five years, the F. E. Samson company at 220 North Riverside has been able to make numerous expansions, the most recent being the addition of a new line of feeds. The Triangle Milling company, not previously represented in southern Oregon, has added the Samson firm to its list of distributors.

The Triangle X-tra Egg Producer will increase poultrymen's profits from 20 per cent to 40 per cent, according to Mr. Samson, who stated that, with advanced feed prices, farmers are particularly interested in getting the most for their money.

Better business conditions have enabled Mr. Samson to install new equipment for the transfer and mill departments for the benefit of his large number of customers throughout the valley.

In addition to being doubly constructed, the new-old house boasts of an extra bedroom and a large garage. Plans were made by Leslie Van Doren, local architect.

Furniture for the modernized home were loaned by local firms who assisted in making the inspection day a complete success, according to J. H. 100 BUY TICKETS FROM GLEEMEN

(By Arthur Warnock)

Three days of campaigning has resulted in the sale of over 100 association memberships in the Medford Gleemen for their two splendid concerts to be given this season. If that good work can be kept up the financial success of the city's famous male choir is assured for another year. It is true that the campaign has two weeks yet to run, but if it can be wound up before that, in the words of the bromide, "Fine and dandy." Likewise, "Okay by me."

An interesting sidelight on the sale of memberships reveals that many parents are buying tickets for their children. The reason offered is that parents recognize the educational value of the good music the Gleemen give. The concerts mean two real musical educational programs, quite apart from the entertainment they never over the heads of the audience. Mr. Stevens, the wise director, is an expert program maker. He always gives an evening of the best of music, but, at the same time, the best music that means lovely melody that touches the heart, that thrills the soul. You know, music that every music lover loves to hear.

HAUPTMANN ALIBI HEARD IN EFFORT STAY EXECUTION

her husband must have been home the night of March 1, 1932, the night of the kidnaping, as it was Tuesday and he always called for her to take her home from her work at a Bronx bakery on Tuesday nights.

On cross examination she said she had told Inspector Henry Bruckman, in charge of Bronx detectives, a short time after her husband's arrest, that she didn't know whether her husband was at home the night of March 1, 1932. On re-direct examination, however, she said then she found March 1, 1932, was Tuesday, she knew her husband must have been home that night because he always called for her at the bakery on Tuesday nights.

Took His Wife to Work

Frederickson said that in the morning Hauptmann usually took his wife to the store and had his coffee there, making the trip in his automobile.

The witness, in answer to a question by Fawcett, said he thought Mrs. Hauptmann was working the night of March 1, 1932, the night the Lindbergh baby was kidnaped. The answer was stricken out on motion by Wilentz, on the ground that someone told him it was Tuesday "and that was the only basis for his testimony, so evidently he doesn't know."

Justice Hammer ordered that the question be reframed, and Frederickson answered "that was a Tuesday night and she must have been working because my wife was always off on Tuesday nights."

Again Wilentz moved that the answer be stricken as not responsive, and the motion was granted.

Frederickson's wife was next called to the stand.

She testified as did her husband concerning Mrs. Hauptmann's employment at the bakery.

Seen by Employers

"Did you see Hauptmann bring Mrs. Hauptmann to the store and call for her at night?" asked Fawcett.

"Always, when I was there," was the reply.

"Did you know Anna Hauptmann was working at the store on March 1, 1932?"

"Yes," the witness said.

Wilentz had no question, and Mrs. Frederickson was excused.

Hauptmann, who had listened without particular emotion to previous testimony, sat rigid as his wife testified.

He caught her eye three or four times during the account and smiled.

RATTLERS AROUND HOOD RIVER AREA

HOOD RIVER, Ore., Oct. 15.—(AP) Rattlesnakes are unusually numerous in the mid-Columbia section again this fall as they were last spring.

The large numbers this spring were attributed to early warm weather, and summer season has kept the snakes from going into winter hibernation as early as usual.

Frank Crelighton, a rancher of Glenwood, Wash., and R. Huntington Kliektat, discovered a coiled mass of snakes on a sunny ledge of the Kliektat river. They killed six, one of which had 14 rattles. Several of the snakes were three feet long and two inches in diameter.
