Vaudeville Bill Coming Thursday Craterian Stage

Ralph Britt's High Hatters of Rhythm, the third unit of the road shows playing here every other week, will be on the stage of the Craterian theater for both matinee and evening shows tomorrow only.

On the screen, Ann Sothern, Neil Hamilton and Paul Kelly will be shown in "Blind Date," relating the sad, sad story of a young automobile mechanic so engrossed in feathering the nest of his home-to-be that he allows the bird to fly. Comedy, mixed with drama and romance, is the keynote of the film.

Ralph Britt and his Victor Recording orchestra headline the High Hatters' revue, a band that has won an enviable reputation over coast-to-coast broadcasts and known as one of the best bands ever to have appeared at the Topaz night club in Tulsa, Okla., the Rice hotel in Houston and several other dance spots. Besides forming the musical background for the other acts on the bill, the orchestra also is featured in musical numbers, holding the spotlight for much applause.

Zarak and Collett, an internationally famous dance team, do the Caroca, the Brazilian dance sensation that was such a hit in the motion picture, "Flying Down to Rio," and has such complicated steps that no one but accomplished dancers have attempted this intriguing routine.

Irene Cooper, radio's most recent "find," comes in for her share of the applause with her singing and radiant personality. As master of ceremonies, the High Hatters have Dick Bosley, whose appearances on stage and screen have always been made with a suavity that speaks well for his stage training.

The Three Harmonettes, lovely and talented ladies, are high lights of the show with their pleasing harmony personality. A clever tap team, Don and Fern, brings into the show the snap and rattle of their feet that audiences like so well.

With their interpretive dance, "The Drunk and the Doll," Jack and Ginger have become one of the big features of the revue. Cleverly executed, this eccentric comedy dance forms the novelty that is so essential in the show.

Oriental dancing is brought into the picture by Ferne Lewis, adding a touch of the Far East to what is otherwise a modern, up-to-date presentation.

Marvel and Boley have their moments in "Dumb Moments," which speaks for itself as a comedy team and adds much comedy to the bill. Scat singing and novelty entertaining is given by Pat Patterson with Miss Marvel adding more tap dancing with her rendition of the original George Primrose soft shoe routine.

Pitfalls of Youth Is Rialto Subject

Will the American home prevail against the evils and pitfalls confronting our younger generation?

This is one of the vital questions of the present day said to be answered in the startling film drama "Flaming Passion," playing tomorrow and Friday at the Rialto theater.

How the shifting morals of mankind have switched in recent years until the greatest dangers which are facing youth today are not entirely the scarlet menace, but a combination of ignorance and a mania for experience, is brought out forcibly in this unusual picture.

How a young high school girl, through her desire for knowing the things concerning which she has always been told are taboo, is forced into a life of immorality, and how the crane for thrills brings others to the same path is poignantly told. Not in any sense a preachment, but a powerful and educational drama of modern life, "Flaming Passion" will nevertheless prove a revelation to many young folk and their parents. Amazing revelations of the consequences which follow in the wake of the hectic, mad life led by many of our youth are made in the course of the picture.

It is a picture graphically relating the most powerful story ever brought to the talking screen and should prove an all-important factor in the battle now going forward for better morals and a healthier, saner world. Due to the extreme frankness of the theme, the picture will not be shown to children under the age of 16, being limited to adults only. The matinee showings will be for women only and the nights for men only.
