This has renewed a long standing that between medical science and the teachings of the tribal medicine men. The indiana confine ineir cases to tage pits, known as reasing pits, where the fill remain as long as they can endure the heat from fires built about the place. When the agony and burning can be endured no longer they run to the nearest stream and they rim to the mearest scream and plunge into the water.

The fire of the rossting-pits is sup-posed to chase the evil spirits within the body outside and the water is supposed to cleanse the outer portion of all such demons, according to the superstition of the Apache tribe. This method of treatment is one of the greatest hindrances to fighting the disease that has caused much worry on the reservation, according to Dr. Huff.

Important business will be the biteminal election of officers. The Jackson County Grange gas co-op, which was opened for business at the Suntile Survive station some time ago, has been doing a good business and the directors will have an interesting report to make. Plans have been made to handle other commodities for the farmer as soon as demand warrants it. It will pay every farmer to keep in touch with this co-op and let it help to reduce his overhead.

The agricultural and marketing committee slways has an interesting report to make. The attention of this committee allows being centered on the importation of purebred stock.
