

SKIDDING TROJANS TO FACE STANFORD COMING SATURDAY

Thornhill's Squad Popular Favorite In Annual Classic—Oregon Going To Utah—O. S. C.-Gonzaga.

By RUSSELL J. NEWLAND
Associated Press Sports Writer
SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 22.—(AP)—Into the golden brown days of later autumn the far western football season rolls next Saturday for games that once were considered gridiron classics but now shape up as ordinary encounters in view of the startling reversals that have preceded them.

Southern California's mighty Trojans, mired in the grip of a disappointing season that lists two defeats and a tie, come to Stanford with faint hopes of taking the measure of a team that has had close calls but still boasts an unbeaten record.

The Trojans wrote a 6-6 tie with Oregon State into the records last Saturday and in their only other coast conference clash they lost to Washington State 19 to 0. Stanford eked out a 3 to 0 win over University of San Francisco Saturday by the margin of an accurate 16 yard field goal from placement by "Monk" Moesrip, end.

Stanford favored

While "Tiny" Thornhill's Stanford warriors are popular favorites to defeat the Trojan charges of Howard Jones for a second successive year, the Oregon State boys who chase the pigskin under the guidance of Len Slinner have divided opinions on the outcome. The Oregon State boys lost to Stanford 17 to 0 three weeks ago and held Southern California even.

The northerners, passing through San Francisco yesterday enroute home, were unanimous in the belief the Southern California-Stanford battle would be close. With due respect to Stanford's power in the earlier game, the Oregonians said they were impressed with both the offensive and defensive strength of Southern California's backfield as it lined up against them.

Bears Face Huskies

The big struggle in the northwest will pit California's Bears against Washington's Huskies, both unbeaten in conference play. The Bears opened their conference season Saturday with a 3 to 0 victory over their academic brothers, the Bruins of the University of California at Los Angeles. It was another case of the field goal triumphing when ground and aerial plays failed. Archie Williams, left halfback, kicked from the 18 yard mark to decide an otherwise even engagement.

Winner of two conference games but still shocked by the 13 to 6 loss to Gonzaga, a non-conference member a week ago, Washington State's Cougars will match strength with Oregon State on their home field.

Oregon Plays Utah

University of Oregon travels to Salt Lake City for an inter-sectional contest with University of Utah with high hopes of repeating the 26 to 7 victory of a year ago.

The University of California at Los Angeles Bruins take on the California Aggies at home and Santa Clara goes to Fresno State's stronghold for the week-end.

Pacific coast conference standings:

HUGHES HURT IN PRO GRID GAME

CHICAGO, Oct. 22.—(AP)—The Detroit Lions, battling for the leadership of the National Professional Football league, will catch up on their schedule, and they hope, pull up even with the champion Chicago Bears tonight.

The Lions were to meet the Brooklyn Dodgers yesterday, but unfavorable weather caused postponement.

The Bears took league and western division leadership yesterday by trouncing the Cincinnati Reds, 41 to 7.

One of the roughest battles in league history, Green Bay defeated the Cardinals 15 to 0. Before the final whistle, Volok and Cook of the Cards suffered fractured ankles, and Bernie Hughes, another Cardinal, a severe hip injury. Hank Bruder, Joe Laws and Jorgenson of the Packers were taken off the field with injuries.

Ken Strong again led the New York Giants as they defeated Pittsburgh, 17 to 7, to retain the eastern section lead.

After having two touchdowns called back because of rules violations, Boston defeated Philadelphia, 6-0.

BRONCOS DEFEAT S. F. OLYMPIC CLUB

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 22.—(AP)—Santa Clara university's Broncos are still among the Pacific Coast's undefeated teams, their latest victory a 13-6 triumph over the San Francisco Olympic club.

Santa Clara struck twice in the opening quarter, twice yesterday to put over a pair of touchdowns, one on a forward pass over the goal line from De Rosa, left half, to Quarterback Salatinio and the other on a lateral pass and 28 yard run by De Rosa.

Hubbard, former San Jose state college ace, made the club's only touchdown late in the first half when he raced 60 yards after taking a forward pass from Baat.

Drizzly rain and a slippery field hampered both teams.

WILLIAM G. STEEL, FATHER OF CRATER CALLED BY DEATH

1854, and started west at the age of 15.

At the age of thirty, in 1884, Mr. Steel was employed in the Portland postoffice, but became restless at his work. With his companion, the Rev. E. T. Lockard, Mr. Steel left Portland before the mountain snows were out that year, and soon descended from the Ashland stage at Linkville (now Klamath Falls).

Lured by Lake

The trip was made to undertake a journey to Crater Lake, which had originally enticed him from the inheritance of a Kansas landholding. Stories that a missionary had told of Crater Lake caused him to make the journey westward.

The night that Steel and his companion arrived at the lake, he announced intentions of trying to have that entire area reserved as a national park. Scarcely a dozen white men had viewed the lake at that time.

Steel could have claimed Crater Lake as his own, but instead, he drew up petitions signed by nearly every prominent man in the state, and sought assistance from President Grover Cleveland. The president, seeing the value of his project, had ten townships originally selected by Steel withdrawn from public entry. This was the first step in forming the park.

Congress Refuses Pleas

For 17 long years, during which time his determination became an amendment to official Washington, Steel was unable to persuade congress to accept for the nation, the lake of blue in southern Oregon.

It was during this period that he accomplished the nationalization of the forests upon the Cascade range. This, in addition to the two volumes he had written on the resources of Oregon, would have constituted a life work for many men.

These accomplishments brought him little or nothing in material reward but will Steel cared little or nothing for worldly goods. During this period he spent his life in lowly lodgings, his occupations anything that would keep body and soul together.

For 26 years, no money was received from outside sources for the advancement of Crater Lake national park. Entering this service as a young man, he was nearly 60 years old before the first appropriation for Crater Lake was authorized by congress.

Of Old School

Judge Steel has been described as "a slender, retiring man whose unflaring eyes are gentle, whose welcome and courtesy are those of the old school."

Theodore Roosevelt, during his term as president, definitely took over for the United States the 10 townships originally set aside from entry by President Cleveland. The matter was turned over to the war department, and not until January, 1915, when the national park service was formed, did this area receive any recognition as a unit, and pay was allowed for its civilian personnel.

Discovered In 1843

Crater Lake was discovered June 12, 1843, by John W. Hillman of Jacksonville. Chauncey Nye of Eagle Point visited the lake in 1862. Captain Sprague, U. S. A., saw the lake in 1865 and O. H. Stearns, a private in the company, went down to the water. Captain Sprague named the body of water, Lake Majesty.

James Linn of Jacksonville chose the name Crater Lake in 1869 and on July 15, 1885, William Gladstone Steel, John M. Breck Jr., two ministers, Captain Clarence E. Dutton of the U. S. G. S., and Professor Joseph LeConte made the trip. It was at this time that Steel suggested the reservation be made.

Steel floated the first boat on the lake in 1886, at which time soundings were made. The craft is now submerged in the bay of Wizard Island.

Crater Lake park was created by an act of congress May 22, 1902.

HEAVY RAINFALL GIVES FARMERS CHANCE TO PLOW

A rain of 1.75 inches, which will allow fall plowing, fell generally over Jackson county during the week-end, and according to Professor F. C. Reimer of the Southern Oregon Experiment station at Talent, the water soaked into the ground a distance of nine inches.

The first rain was on Friday night, and continued practically all day Saturday and through the night, with intermittent showers on Sunday and Sunday night. The federal weather bureau reported .59 of an inch of moisture between 5 a. m. and 5 p. m., Sunday, with 44 inches from 5 p. m. yesterday to 5 a. m. today. Professor Reimer said 1.76 inches fell at the experiment station during the week-end.

With the forecast for tonight and Tuesday unsettled with rain, weather bureau records will continue to show an excess of moisture for this time of the year.

Already there is 1.21 inches in excess of the average for this date, with a seasonal excess of one inch.

The storm Sunday held up the regular United Air Lines schedule from Saturday morning until Sunday night, the regular southbound liner checking in here last midnight. Today the planes were following their usual schedules.

Oregon Weather

Unsettled, rain tonight and Tuesday west portion; Tuesday in northwest portion; moderate temperature; fresh, southwest winds backing to strong south winds off the coast.
