

ADDRESS ON CHINA GIVEN BY DR. HOLT AT ROTARY LUNCH

Dr. W. F. Holt entertained the members of the Medford Rotary club at a luncheon Tuesday at the Hotel Medford, with an address on China. The speaker, who formerly resided in the Orient, brought to the Rotarians and guests, a first-hand word picture of the great Chinese nation, a country whose area extends over one one-half million square miles, and boasts a population in excess of four hundred million people.

Dr. Holt explained to his audience how China is divided into 28 provinces, and described the climate and resources of the great country of the east. In speaking of Chinese early history, Dr. Holt pointed out that archeologists have found relics of the Neolithic man in their explorations, indicative of the great age of the land now known as China.

Peaches and apricots, now enjoyed in this country, originated in China, Dr. Holt said, and paper, gunpowder, and the compass, all had their birth in the inventive minds of early Chinese. The Chinese also originated the art of printing, the speaker said.

Dr. Holt described the known start of civilization in 221 B. C., in China, and spoke briefly of the early conquests and explorations of famous Chinese rulers and travelers. He also emphasized the recent effect of western civilization in China since the Boxer uprising, and spoke of the formation of the Chinese republic in recent years.

The powerful influence of ancestor worship on the people of China was emphasized by Dr. Holt. He also quoted from recent interviews with prominent Chinese statesmen, expressing the attitude of the Chinese toward recent European dictatorships, and affirming their faith in the survival of rule by the people.

Following Dr. Holt's address, which was a part of the Rotary club international program, Don Newbury introduced Congressman James Mott, representative of the first congressional district of Oregon at Washington, D. C. Congressman Mott devoted most of his brief address to discussing legislation most important to this congressional district.

As a member of the committee on public lands, which has jurisdiction over the public domain, Mott has done much to secure federal funds to reimburse this state for tax money which was lost when land grants reverted to the government. He spoke briefly of the Stanfield act, affecting the Oregon-California land grants, and explained how funds were made available to offset taxes when three million acres of land were taken off the tax rolls. He pointed out the numerous recent attacks on the Stanfield act and outlined his efforts to protect the revenue now being secured by Oregon.

Congressman Mott also explained the effort he is making to effect legislation which would provide money direct from the United States treasury representing land grant tax money.

The building of roads with federal funds was the second important "local" problem discussed by Congressman Mott, who is a member of the roads committee.

Between nine and ten million dollars of federal funds which does not have to be matched with state funds has been available for Oregon through recent federal road legislation.

In outlining so-called "New Deal" legislation, Congressman Mott pointed out that emergency acts designed for national recovery would have passed had only Republicans voted, as the emergency measures were accorded Republican majorities. This indicated, he said, the non-partisan attitude of the 73rd congress when Franklin Roosevelt assumed the presidency. The real division of opinion in Washington has been on the effort to take law-making power from the congress and bestow it on the president and bureau chiefs, Congressman Mott said.

Frank Hull, who heads the Community Chest campaign for Medford, spoke briefly during the Rotary meeting today, emphasizing the importance of public-spirited men and women to wholeheartedly cooperate in successfully "putting over" the 1934 chest campaign.

FLORIDIAN MUST DISCHARGE PEARS

PORTLAND, Oct. 24.—(AP)—Three sailors, injured when the inter-coastal freighter Floridian was hammered by a terrific gale off the mouth of the Columbia river Sunday, were received at a hospital here last night.

The Floridian crossed in the river yesterday and proceeded to Portland for survey of damage and for repairs.

The injured men were E. M. Daugherty, 28, of Savannah; William Long, 36, of Richmond, and Frank Gatten, 49, of New Orleans.

Repairs to the Floridian will require nearly a month's time, agents said. Much of her big cargo of grain and Medford pears must be unloaded before she goes on drydock.

CAMP WINEGLASS MOVES TO CAVES

Company 1634, CCC, which has been located at Camp Wineglass in raster Lake national park during the summer, moved Monday to Oregon Caves camp site where the men will be located for the winter. The camp is at the same location as the company's summer spike camp.

By train today, coming from Chicago, are replacements for several of the camps. Sixteen men will detrain at Powers for Camp China Flats, and at Coquille men will detrain with 21 for Humburg, 80 for Camp Cape Sebastian and 98 for Camp McKinley, Company 1629, which has been at Camp Tiller during the summer, was scheduled to move Tuesday to Wolf Creek, where Co. 1629 had a spike camp during the summer. Company 799 of Camp McRose moved yesterday to Camp Sitkum, new winter camp site.

CRATERIAN SHOWS HOSPITAL SCENES
What actually takes place in arriving at a diagnosis and the methods used in instituting competent and effective treatment in a modern hospital institution, will be clearly portrayed in a two-reel film to be shown in all programs at the Craterian theater tonight under the auspices of medical profession and the hospital of this city.

From the opening of the picture to the closing scenes in the hospital, interest and attention is held, according to those who have seen this film. A competent portrayal of the development of the hospital betterment movement is given, which is followed by scenes showing the arrival of the patient at the hospital, the preliminary examination, the record made of the laboratory and other tests, the consultation of physicians, all of which leads up to the operation, which is shown realistically, but not in a way to alarm the audience. The convalescence of the patient is traced, showing the various stages of his treatment and handling until he is dismissed from the hospital.
