Murder Mystery Is Theme Rialto Film

For fun and for entertainment that bubbles with unusual angles, the Rialto theater is showing "Murder in the Private Car" today and Saturday.

To those inclined to philosophize their amusement, it may indicate a welcome trend of the screen back toward those basic elements that made silent pictures so successful—movement, laughter, thrills, drama.

But to nearly everybody "Murder in the Private Car" will be crackling good entertainment, with more than usually fine comedy.

Charlie Ruggles, to begin with, tops the cast of featured players and around him revolves the intriguing story. He appears as a comedy deflector of crime who gets mixed into a dastardly plot to assassinate a comedy young heiress, and what happens thereafter is fun and thrills in plentiful measure.

Saturday night, immediately following the last showing of the regular program, the Rialto will inaugurate the first of its weekly prevues. The extra feature to be shown tomorrow night at no extra charge is a fast-moving action thriller starring Bob Steele in "The Fighting Champ."
