In President Roosevelt's reorganization of the NRA, Donald R. Richberg (center) emerged as the new top man in the industrial recovery drive. He heads a new industrial emergency committee of six which will outline policies for the revamped NRA. Members of the NRA's new administrative agency, to be known as the national industrial recovery board, include Leon C. Marshall (upper left), former Johns Hopkins law professor; Clay Williams (lower left), North Carolina tobacco manufacturer; A. D. Whiteside (upper right), publisher of financial data; Sidney Hillman (lower right), president of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers union. ARTIST'S BIRD'S EYE OF BAY-BUILT FAIRSITE

Here is an artist's conception of how San Francisco's proposed fair to commemorate the completion of two large bridges in 1938 would look from the air if shoals off Yerba Buena (Goat) Island in the bay were filled in and used as the site as proposed. (Associated Press Photo)

THIS DISC IS MAN'S GREATEST CREATION IN GLASS

The largest piece of glass ever cast by man is this 200-inch telescope disc, poured at Corning, N. Y., last March. It is 17 feet in diameter, 27 inches thick, and weighs 20 tons. It is shaped like a slice of pineapple with a hole in the center. Standing on it are Dr. George V. McCauley (left) and Dr. J. C. Hostetter, who directed its production. (Associated Press Photo)

BONES HAMILTON LEADS INDIANS TO VICTORY

Stanford University retrieved for the tie to which Northwestern held Coach Thornhill's Redskins last year by beating the Purple Jerseyed gridsters from Illinois 20 to 0 at Palo Alto Oct. 13. Bones Hamilton, substituting for Stanford's star fullback, Bobby Grayson, carried the brunt of the Stanford offensive. He is shown here scoring a touchdown in the second quarter. SUPREME COURT UPHOLDS LAMSON

California's supreme court all but dismissed the charge of murder against David A. Lamson, Stanford press executive, when it set aside his conviction under which he had been sentenced to death for the alleged slaying of his wife, Allene. Harry McKenzie, defendant's attorney, Dr. Margaret Lamson, the accused's sister who loyally rallied to his support and Lamson posed for this picture after the high court's verdict had been received. Yugoslavian Regent

The will of the slain King Alexander of Yugoslavia named his cousin, Prince Paul (above), as one member of the three-man regency council to serve during the reign of the nation's new boy-king, Peter II. (Associated Press Photo)

WIDOWED QUEEN AT MARSEILLE

Queen Marie of Yugoslavia is shown after her arrival in Marseille, where her consort, King Alexander, was slain by an assassin. Later she joined her 11-year-old son, now King Peter II, in Paris for their return trip to Belgrade. (Associated Press Photo—Bartlane Transmission via Western Union cables)

Jurists Plead For Him

Members of the California Supreme court made personal pleas to Governor Frank Merriam to commute the death sentence imposed on Charles D. Tedesco (above) for the killing of John W. Whitehead, a shoemaker in Los Angeles, July 16, 1932. The judges expressed strong doubts as to his guilt. (Associated Press Photo)

Apparently Lynwood "Schoolboy" Rowe was doing all right, even though he got no better than an even break in his world series pitching efforts, for Edna married him. Here's the famous young Detroit pitcher and his bride, the former Edna Mary Shinn of El Cerrito, Ark., in a "clutch"—but not the kind baseball writers write about. (Associated Press Photo)
