

3 DIE, 15 WOUNDED IN SUDDEN CLIMAX OF POLITICAL FEUD

Readers that machine gun had been used by the killers. Lieut. Edward Griffith, in charge of the state police investigation, said four shotguns, two high powered rifles, four automatic pistols and two revolvers had been found at Joseph Bruno's home, and that one high powered rifle had been found in his nephew's quarters.

One of those who was wounded, Miss Alice McBride, said the weapons "must have been machine guns, they peppered so fast."

To the mining families that make up Kelayres' population, the shooting was the climax to a factional political war that has been going on for more than a year.

Red fire lighted the street, and banners flared as the paraders swung along, shouting to each other as they marched. Suddenly spurts of flame spat from the darkened windows of two homes opposite each other.

What happened was described by Charles Drevo, a miner, who was walking about fifty feet behind the leaders.

"We had an open air meeting and someone suggested a parade through town, headed by a truck loaded with children, we started down the street—a happy crowd in holiday mood. It was just a parade of happy people.

"There wasn't any disorder, nothing was thrown—we were calling back and forth to our friends in the line and suddenly as the head of the line drew close to the house of Joseph Bruno, county detective and county republican chairman, fire spurted from every window, it seemed to me.

"And from the opposite side of the street where Paul Bruno, his nephew, lives, shots came, too, I thought.

"Men, women, the children in the truck were caught in the cross fire—crumpled to the ground, as everyone ran.

"Worse Than War
"It was worse than war, because of the children and the women. It was like something unbelievable—and it still seems too ghastly to remember."

Of the wounded, hospital physicians said they held little hope for Andrew Koutiribash, and Donald Perna, 35, of Kelayres. Others remaining in the hospital were John Saladago, 33, John Lango, 32, and Edward Vesuchoff.

The other injured were Mrs. Charles Calomoni, 27, daughter of Frank Fiorilla, one of the slain men; William Jacoby, 31, Miss Jennie McAlone, 22, Miss Irene Condon, 23, Salvatore Saladago, Miss Freda DeFrank, 29, Mrs. Mary Devora, 23, Mary Sacco, Maurice Bonair and Daniel Steinhil, all of Kelayres.

As some of the paraders hurried they wounded and dying to hospitals, another group surged toward the home of Joseph Bruno, whom the marchers held responsible for the shooting, threatening to dynamite his home.

Officers Keep Order
A semblance of order was maintained by state police and deputy sheriffs, but the crowds on the streets did not leave until Bruno and the others were arrested.

To prevent what they feared would be a mass attack, the police surrounded the Bruno home with automobiles while taking Bruno from his home.

"Kill him," the mob yelled, "don't let him be a king."
Arrested with Bruno and taken to Tamaqua for safety's sake were his wife and daughters, Elveda, 19, and Mrs. Antonette Billig, of McAdoo; their sons, Fred and James, and the latter's wife, Mrs. Della Bruno; Mr. and Mrs. Paul Bruno; Celia Bracka, and Julio Leshko, of East McAdoo; Alexander Socker and his daughter Ets, and Peter Russo, all of Kelayres.

Shooting Denied
Although Joseph Bruno denied any knowledge of shots coming from his residence, state police said the shots were fired from the second floor of his home and from the third floor apartment of the house of John Saladago, directly across the street, where Paul Bruno lives.

He insisted he had just left the republican organization headquarters, next door to his home, for the day, and had gone home with some of his co-workers to draw up watchers' papers for party workers from the Lefty district.

He said his family was seated with him in one room when the parade was heard coming down the street from the other end of town. Some stones struck his property as the head of the parade passed, he added, and then some shots rang out, followed by the crash of stones through his front windows. He said he did not know whether anyone in his house had fired.

control of the town by a 100 vote margin on the face of the official returns. A court recount reversed the decision and gave the election to the republicans.

The fight was taken into the courts and is still there, but the tempers of the Klein township partisans were not content with dropping it there. They carried it into the schools as the fall term opened this year.

Each faction named its own set of teachers, and each was determined to have their teachers in charge of the children. Street battles ensued, hair was pulled, eyes were blackened, and bricks were thrown until state police intervened.

By the time a truce was patched up, the building was partly wrecked and school opening was delayed.

FRENCH RADICALS DISRUPT CABINET BY WITHDRAWALS

PARIS, France, Nov. 6.—(AP)—The radical members of the French cabinet withdrew from office today, wrecking the government of Premier Gaston Doumergue.

Former Premier Edouard Herriot, minister without portfolio under Doumergue, and head of the radical socialists had been in opposition to many of the premier's ideas.

The premier was understood to be prepared to give to President LeBrun the collective resignation of the whole ministry which has been in power since the bloody riots of last February.

Herriot is one of the strongest political veterans in France and his opposition to the premier, which has caused a series of rumors of impending breakdowns in the government in the last few weeks, was regarded as the crux of the situation.

Five other radical socialists sat in the cabinet with Herriot. The radical group's action was taken at a meeting of party leaders, and it was indicated Doumergue would offer the resignations formally to President LeBrun at once.

SEATTLE, Nov. 6.—(AP)—The federal regional labor board for the 17th district today announced its opinion that the Long-Bell Lumber Sales company and the Weyerhaeuser Timber company are guilty of violating section 7-A of the N.R.A. by favoring workers who are members of the 4-L union over those who are members of the A. Cases against the two big companies were similar, charges being brought by the loggers and sawmill workers union No. 18260 of the American Federation of Labor, in each instance alleging the lumber companies themselves affiliated with the Loyal Legion of Lumber and Loggers, preferred workers who also were members of the 4-L or "company union."
