

Karasick and Wagner Will Wrestle Tonight on Revamped Card

INJURY TO MUIR FORCES CHANGE AT LAST MINUTE

Because of injuries received at Klamath Falls last Saturday night when he wrestled with Man Mountain Dean, behemoth grappler, Bonny Muir, Australian champion, will not appear at the armory in tonight's wrestling card—which has been revamped into a new lineup of muscle-manglers.

Although Muir has received treatment all week for a dislocated vertebra, which he suffered when Dean shook hands with Old Man Gravity and let fall his 300-odd pounds on Muir's neck, the doctor ruled out his main event schedule here tonight with Jack Fosgren, Canadian titleholder. Accordingly, Promoter Mack Lillard has arranged a new card of eminent grip and grime men, in which Don Wagner, ex-Oregon State gridster, has been moved into a main event berth with Al Karasick, renowned Russian Lion.

Fosgren will be seen in action in the first tumble of the double show with Billy Newman, the Denver mauler, who had previously been scheduled to meet Wagner.

Despite the change, Lillard has succeeded in arranging what will probably turn out to be one of the highlights of his wrestling menu for 1934, in the main event bout. Wagner has proved one of the most popular wrestlers yet to draw applause from local fandom, and is considered an exceptionally hard

INDIANS OFFENSE MAY GIVE TIGERS PLENTY TROUBLE

(By Harold Grove.)

When the Medford high school Tigers take to the field Armistice day (Monday) to halt the march of the Chemawa Indians on their war-path, they will find that the Indians possess a running attack that is capable of forcing most white men's strongholds.

As far as can be learned concerning the Indians' record, they have proceeded thus far in the season's scarping tours without a loss to their own tribe.

When it comes to weight, the Indians will have an even break, for they possess some heavy boys, according to a weight chart sent Coach D. K. Burgher of Medford.

Stuart Recovering.

Don Stuart, Medford high school center, is gradually recovering from a slight chest injury sustained in the Ashland contest last week. Bill Bates, fullback, is also recuperating from a badly skinned nose received in last Saturday's tilt. Bob Smith and Leo Gheardi are O. K.

Tall yarns have been passed concerning the origin of different sport classes, so here is one concerning football. In the mining country of Pennsylvania, about the year 1840, there was a nomad tribe of Indians that found food mighty scarce. There were only 11 members in the tribe. These Indians made it a practice to raid chicken pens to secure their food. One afternoon—if the story is correct it was about 2 o'clock—these Indians started out in search of food. They came to an old abandoned iron-scrap yard near door to an old German family home. The yard was littered with old pieces of grates and other bits of iron used in heating plants. When the Indians started in on the raid of his storehouse, they came across a stuffed pig, which they thought to be real. The old Indian chief drew a knife and started to scalp the pig, and at this moment the German spied him. The homesteader yelled at his whole family to come and help him rescue the pig. They chased the Indians onto this abandoned iron-scrap yard and right then and there a battle royal took place over the stuffed pig. One of the Indians, in trying to run with the pig, stumbled and fell and one of the German boys kicked at the pig and kicked all the stuffing out, so there was nothing left but the pig skin. That is how the word pigskin and gridiron came into effect, for iron grates defined means gridiron. The way football came in was that one of the German boys hit his foot on the gridiron and when he went home he exclaimed, "My foot haw!"

GRIDIRON GLEANINGS

(By the Associated Press)

EUGENE, Ore.—University of Oregon's big hope in its classic against the Oregon State football team at Portland Saturday weighs 155 pounds. It's Maurice ("Flea") Van Vliet, regular ball carrying, signal shouting and passing halfback, who also will be called upon to do the punting. Co-Captain Bob Parke, one of the outstanding punters on the coast, has a broken instep and may not be able to play.

Van Vliet kicks consistently and is good on quick kicks. And offensively he's been the big show for Oregon this season.

CORVALLIS, Ore.—Gloom is vanishing as injured veterans return to shape for Oregon State's annual football game with University of Oregon Saturday.

"Red" Franklin has regained his 1933 dash and verve. Fullbacks Joe Linn and Helkenen, feared out on injuries, have recovered rapidly and will be ready to alternate as battering rams. Schultz, regular end, is another good man you just can't keep down in bed.

The worst casualty is Coach Lon Stiner, whose voice was reduced to a whisper by tonsil trouble. Words decipherable from his alleged "whispering" campaign emanate confidence in Saturday's outcome.

MOSCOW, Idaho.—For Joe Wheeler, 200-pound Idaho tackle, the "bit-terest" pill will be to sit out the Washington State football game at Pullman next Saturday.

Wheeler sprained a knee in the College of Idaho game here last Saturday and has been warming the bench all week.

PULLMAN, Wash.—College infirmary today had sent a star back into the Washington State line and plucked one from the backfield.

Dwight Scheyer, big tackle who alternates with Lammie Theodoratos, had recovered from a bad cold, but Ted Christoffersen, halfback, was admitted to a ward, complaining of "aching all over" from a cold.

SONS BACKFIELD MAIN WORRY IN TILT WITH CHICO

By BILLY HULEN.

ASHLAND, Nov. 8.—(Spl.)—With their final chance of redeeming a disastrous season and winding up with at least a small burst of glory, Howard Hobson's underdog Southern Oregon Normal school football team will go on the field at Ashland Saturday against Chico State college in the annual homecoming battle with the entire squad in the best physical condition since the opening week of practice.

All players, with the exception of Jack Eagles, who won't see action because of a neck injury and Billy Courtney, quarterback who hurt his shoulder in the Monmouth affair, are more than ready to go. For the first time since the middle of the season, Jay Adams, the halfback with the burning speed, will be available for heavy duty.

From pre-game appearances, it looks like it will be a battle of two heavy, powerful lines with lots of high scoring potentialities on one side and a rather weak punch on the other.

The SONS line has been no cause of worry to Hobson all year, his tremendous 200-pound forward wall more than holding its own with any it has encountered. It's in the backfield where all the grief has made itself known, lack of a reliable scoring punch being the principal weakness.

Not so with Chico State, however, if records and reports from the south mean anything. Behind probably an equally powerful line, roams the best quartet of ball carriers in the far western conference, which includes such teams as San Jose State, College of Pacific, where Alonzo Stage is head man and University of Nevada, upsetter of St. Mary's. Leading the array of brilliant ball packing talent, will be Dick Jenks, who triple threats the life out of opposing teams and who

BUSINESS MEN HELP ST. MARY'S ALL-STAR CAGE TEAM BENEFIT

Ticket sales for the annual St. Mary's All-Stars benefit dance are advancing rapidly with the constant co-operation of Medford business men, who have contributed a small sum each to the furtherance of the benefit dance campaign.

According to members of the St. Mary's All-Stars basketball team, all money derived from this dance will go to buy equipment for the team and for expenses that may come up, such as doctor bills and traveling expenses.

Lampert's Sporting Goods, Brown's Billiard Parlor and Lunch, Brophy's Jewelers, The Toggery, Nandie's Grill, Office Stationery and Supply Co., Lindy's Lunch, Safeway Store, People's Electric and many other Medford business firms have offered their help in the hope that they may get the boys off to a flying start at the 1934 basketball season.

Through the co-operation of Dinty Moore's orchestra and the management of Dreamland hall, the All-Stars are able to offer for entertainment an evening of dance and merriment which will be given at the Dreamland pavilion Friday evening. Dinty Moore's orchestra is noted for its ever-peppy music and coupled with the popular location should prove to be quite an enjoyable evening.

ROOSEVELT HOME FROM BALLOTING

WASHINGTON, Nov. 8.—(AP)—President Roosevelt returned to the capital early this morning from his ancestral home at Hyde Park, N. Y., where he had gone to cast his ballot in Tuesday's election.

Three hundred well-wishers were at the station to greet the chief executive when his special train pulled in.

He went immediately to the executive mansion, ready to plunge at once into the problems confronting the administration, which was so overwhelmingly endorsed in the off-year election.

One of his first engagements was luncheon with Senator Robert M. LaFollette, Wisconsin progressive.
