

MEDFORD CHICKEN CLOSE TO RECORD FOR LAYING EGGS

Medford has produced prize-winning football teams for as far back as anyone cares to remember. It has been her good fortune to claim champion golfers, and she once possessed a champion boxer, although that was some time ago. Blue ribbon pears and apples have long been the order of the day, and records were at one time shattered regularly at the fairground race-tracks, both in the horse and automobile fields.

Now it is Medford's honor to claim as a world's champion at laying eggs, a White Leghorn hen, Lady May, owned by Mrs. R. E. Carley, of the North Pacific highway, Rt. 2, Box 98, according to a news article in the Oregon Farmer for November 15. Lady May has laid 359 eggs in 359 days, a record surpassed only by a New Zealand Black Orpington, which is said to have produced 361 eggs in 1930. The local hen's record was kept daily by Mrs. Carley, who frapriated her, Lady May, whose ancestry can be traced back 24 years, laid her first "chicken-berry" October 20, 1912, beginning February 27, 1934, she laid, without missing a day, for 148 consecutive days. She observed no holidays during the year, disregarding everything from Hallowe'en to Fourth of July. Likewise, she worked every Sunday but two and took off only one Saturday afternoon.

Lady May shows no particular excitement over this achievement, and resigns over her court in the Carley chicken yard quite regally and unperturbed. She will accept visitors there if they wish to gaze upon her charms, but grants no private interviews.

The hen was bought from J. A. Hensen of Corvallis as a baby chick.
