

"UNUSUAL" WEATHER IN SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA

Bathing suits proved effective garb for residents in certain sections of Long Beach, Cal., when heavy rains caused floods which filled the streets. These pretty misses made sport of the storm. (Associated Press Photo)

A MOMENT OF TECHNICAL 'FREEDOM'

Bruno Richard Hauptmann, prison pallor beginning to show despite his fresh shave, slickly-combed hair and erect bearing, enjoyed a momentary and unappreciable technical freedom just after this picture was taken. It shows his arraignment in the Bronx courthouse when that county's charge against him of extortion was removed from the trial calendar to clear the way for his extradition to New Jersey to stand trial for murder in the Lindbergh case. TERRY STARTS HIS HOUSECLEANING

After the sudden collapse of the New York Giants in the National League pennant race two weeks before the end of the season, Bill Terry, Giants' boss, promised a housecleaning. He started proceedings by parting with three players and $75,000 cash for Dick Bartell (below), captain and shortstop of the Phillies. The players traded, shown above left to right, were George Watkins, outfielder; Johnny Vargoz, third baseman; and John "Blondy" Ryan, shortstop. (Associated Press Photos)

TRIAL TURNED TO SANITY HEARING

The murder trial of 19-year-old Bernice Beauchamp Pickrell, accused of slaying her father at a ranch near Gilroy, Cal., was abruptly turned to a sanity hearing in San Jose by Judge Robert Syer after a jury had been selected. She will face the murder charge only if the jury finds her sane. Mrs. Pickrell (left) is shown with her mother, Mrs. Ida Beauchamp. (Associated Press Photo)

Dispatches to a Paris newspaper that Andrew Mellon had paid $1,500,000 to the Soviet government for Raphael's "Alba Madonna," a reproduction of which is shown above, brought denials from the Pittsburgh offices of the former secretary of the treasury. Mellon is vacationing in Scotland. (Associated Press Photo)

About 2,200 persons lost their jobs when the Atlantic and Pacific Tea company closed 300 stores in and around Cleveland. "Labor trouble" was the explanation for the action. Little Bernice Wolfson is shown as she found one of the stores closed tight when she went to make a purchase. Mayor Harry L. Davis (inset) of Cleveland sought to effect an agreement between the company and the Cleveland federation of labor. (Associated Press Photos)

HERE'S NEWEST HAY SPORT

Ski jumping without snow makes the landings harder and the distances attained are not so great, but this member of a Scandinavian Winter sports organization shows how it is done at Los Angeles. Werner Schubert is the jumper pictured as he leaves the runway at an estimated 50 to 60 miles an hour speed. (Associated Press Photo)

Two persons whose activities were closely checked in the widespread investigation of the Lindbergh baby kidnaping were Isadore Fisch (right), the man Bruno Hauptmann said left him the ransom money a year ago, and Henry Uhlig (left), a friend of Fisch. Fisch died of tuberculosis in Germany some months ago. It was established that he had paid his ocean passage with gold certificates, believed to have been part of the ransom bills. Be-Medaled Buddy

'MOTORIZED MOSQUITO' ATTRACTS PLANE FANS

This tiny airplane, one of the smallest ever built, attracted attention at the dedication of the Troy, N. Y., airport. The "motorized mosquito" was built by Edward H. Lanier (left) and flown by Wendell Fleming (right). It has a wing spread of 14 feet and is 16 feet long. The builder claims it will fly 250 miles on eight gallons of gasoline. (Associated Press Photo)
