SNOW AND RAIN ARE WELCOMED BY ORCHARDISTS

The sight of snow in the foothills and mountains surrounding the Rogue River valley, was welcomed by orchardists and farmers as a partial assurance of irrigation storage water for next summer. Snow fell Saturday night and yesterday in the higher levels. No report has yet been received by Manager Olen Arnsapiger of the Medford and Talent Irrigation districts.

The rain that fell on the floor of the valley also caused orchardists and farmers to smile, as it assures winter moisture. The rains of the past week have caused a suspension of fall pruning in the orchards. Much of the fall plowing has been completed.

Arnsapiger said the "run-off" so far has not been sufficient to cause any rise in the small streams and rivers, or to make any great difference in the irrigation storage reservoirs.

With nearly a half inch of rainfall in Medford over the week-end, the forecast for tonight and Tuesday is unsettled, with rain, according to the federal weather bureau here.

Between 5 p. m. Sunday and 5 a. m. today there was 1.6 of an inch of rainfall, while during the preceding 12 hours, .12 was listed. The bureau stated, Friday night and Saturday there was some rain, bringing the total for the week-end up to .47 of an inch.
