SENATE MONETARY MISSIONARIES IN BLOC FAR APART ON SILVER ISSUE

WASHINGTON, Nov. 24.—(AP)—Divergent views on the way to get more money into circulation showed the senate "monetary bloc" split in several directions today after conferences with Father Charles E. Coughlin of Detroit.

Interviews with the three senators who conferred with Father Coughlin disclosed that each had his own idea for dealing with the situation, but that none was very enthusiastic about the plans offered by the others.

They were generally agreed on only two things—that money is too valuable and should be regulated by the government.

All took issue with Senator King (D., Utah), head of the silver bloc at the last session, who recently expressed the view that the money situation was "satisfactory" and that no new legislation was needed.

ten billion dollars, they contend. You can easily see what the expenditure of any considerable portion of this sum would do to deplete the life into the thoroughly deflated and gasping heavy industries.

A study of the situation has just been completed by the Social Science Research Council, financed by the Rockefeller Foundation. It has not yet been published, but is being used as a guide book for future government policy on the subject.

The housing possibilities also are tremendous. The United States normally spent about three billions a year on home construction prior to 1929. This item now is down to 300 millions a year (one-tenth of normal).

The trouble with all these enthusiastic plans is the same as the experience with all New Deal help so far. Expectations always out-strip realizations. As one wise old journalist here said recently: "These things always flow like lava." Don't expect too much.

DELIBERATION OF JURY BUT 2 HOURS VERDICT CHEERED

ora filed in, led by Foreman Lent. "Have you reached a verdict?" asked the Judge.

The response was inaudible. A bailiff took the paper Lent handed him. He read: "We find the defendants not guilty."

Crowd Sympathetic It was a blanket acquittal. A cheer went up from the crowd of spectators, only faintly quieted by the banging of the clerk's gavel.

Some of the defendants broke out with "hurrahs." Some of the crowd rushed to congratulate the defendants. Papers were thrown into the air. The turmoil pervaded the sedate trial room.

But the senior Insull heard the words acquittal with no change of expression. It had been feared that the verdict, guilty or innocent, would be too great a strain for a heart ailment he suffers.

Still unsmiling, he arose and pushed through the jubilant defendants and attorneys to the call of the jury box. He shook hands with each of the jurors.

Lent, the foreman, along with the rest of the jurors, refused to discuss the verdict.

Juror Talks Strong rumor, however, was that they had taken three ballots in the two hours they were inside the jury room. The first was nine to three, the second eleven to one, and the third 12 for acquittal.

Another charge involving the same company—Insull's ill-fated corporation securities company—is pending against him. U. S. District Attorney Green declined to say what plans the government had for pressing that.

Before they retired to the Chicago club for a celebration, the defendants made brief comments on the verdict.

Mrs. Insull, waiting in her hotel for the verdict, heard the verdict by telephone. She said: "I am tremendously happy over the acquittal of my husband and son."

Stanley Field, the famous Chicago philanthropist and an Insull director, was brief. He said, "I am very much appreciative of this verdict."

Only one of the jurors would comment. "After the first two weeks, we had no doubt that the defendants were innocent."

PROTEST HITLER STAND ON BONDS

WASHINGTON, Nov. 24.—(AP) The United States revealed a fourth formal protest to the Hitler government today, charging "discrimination" and continued "unjust treatment" of American holders of German bonds.

The note, delivered to the German foreign office yesterday by Ambassador William E. Dodd, asserted the reich was attempting to "establish a new principle" in regard to debts. This government labeled it "unacceptable and dangerous."

An extended controversy with Berlin has centered upon the treatment accorded American holders of German medium and long term obligations, including Dawes and Young bonds. Three times previously formal protests have been lodged against the according of more favorable payment terms to bondholders of other nationalities than to American.

WARM SPRINGS, Ga., Nov. 24.—(AP)—President Roosevelt and Edsel Ford, automobile manufacturer, got together today for a business talk which brought "very hopeful and optimistic" reports from Ford.

"We are very hopeful and optimistic about business conditions," said Ford. "It is certainly true in our industry and I hear favorable reports all over the country. In stepping up our production to 1,000,000 cars in 1934 we are confident we have come out of the drought and are headed for sustained recovery."

MYSTERY SHROUDS SLAIN CHILDREN

CARLISLE, Pa., Nov. 24.—(AP)—An attractive blonde woman, between 20 and 25 years old, tonight was taken twice to the room in a Carlisle mortuary where lay the bodies of three unidentified children, found dead on a mountain-side.

She first entered the room accompanied by a young man. Both were well dressed.

A few minutes later, obviously under great strain and close to tears, she was led in again.

They were the first persons taken into the room of death for two hours.

A short time earlier, police announced a mountain farmer told them he was bringing in his sister-in-law, who is estranged from her husband, to view the bodies. He told police the couple had three children whose description might fit the girls in this tragedy.

The seventh year of excavating Dura also brought to light a Roman temple to Zeus and a temple to the Phoenician god, Adonis, and his consort, Astarte, the first discovered temples of the deities.

A head of Astarte the Goddess of Love, with two doves on her shoulders, was discovered in the ruins.

Dr. Michael I. Rostovtzeff, sterling professor of ancient history and classical archaeology, said: "The most important discovery of the sanctuary of Mithras cannot be exaggerated."

"Mithras was the greatest of the rivals of Christ in the third century A. D."

The temple of Mithras was found excellently preserved, Rostovtzeff, one of the scientific directors of the expedition, said.
