

EPIDEMIC PERIL LURKS IN FAULTY SEWAGE DISPOSAL

"The city of Medford is working under a handicap with its present sewerage system," it was announced by Chamber of Commerce officials today. "The possibility of an epidemic is always present, but this can be remedied by a favorable route on December 4, which would authorize the building of a modern sewerage system."

"Many other communities who were in a similar situation as Medford now finds itself, have had epidemics," it was pointed out. "The most recent outbreak of intestinal disease attributed to polluted water, caused by faulty sewage disposal, occurred on the Warm Spring Indian agency during the winter of 1932 and 1933. Because of inaccurate diagnosis of cases, it is impossible to state exactly how many deaths and cases occurred. It is believed, however, that there were a total of about 125 typhoid fever cases, of which about 20 died."

In January, 1933, a group of farmers secured damages and an injunction against the city of Baker for the discharge of sewage into Powder river. The city is now completing a modern sewage treatment plant which will rectify the past insanitary condition. In 1929 a dairyman sued the city of LaGrande for damages because typhoid fever, caused by city sewage having polluted an irrigation ditch running through his property. The court awarded damages to this dairyman and the city constructed a modern sewage treatment plant soon after to rectify the pollution.

In the Yakima valley in Washington, typhoid fever is prevalent each year because sewage polluted irrigation water contaminates the wells of farms throughout the valley. Cities along the Yakima river discharge sewage into the river. "As has been stated before, Medford was fortunate that an epidemic did not break out here during the warm summer weather, and the Chamber of Commerce officials confidently hope that voters will eliminate the possibility of such an outbreak here by giving an overwhelming majority for the sewer bond issue on December 4," it was said at the Chamber of Commerce today.

DECISION LIMITED IN STAND ON LORD DECLARES PASTOR

Speaking from the pulpit "A Challenge to an Inevitable Consequence" at the local church of the Nazarene, Fred M. Weatherford, pastor-evangelist, took his text from Ex: 32:20—"Who Is On The Lord's Side?" In part, the speaker said: "Meeting faces to the ministry of whom I shall one day have to give an accounting confers upon me a responsibility of grave concern. The clergyman is dealing with immortal souls whose choices he hopes to assist in bringing to their eternal life. "If I put the question up to you personally—are you on Christ's side, what reply should you make? Remember this—the field of decision is limited. There can only be one of two replies—for or against. "Ye cannot serve two masters. . . . He that is not with me is against me. . . . "It is little wonder that Christ urged the seeking of God as the first obligation of youth. That is the most favorable time. It is also the most useful time, for the child or young person has a life of service. He will, at the same time, escape the perils coincident with a life of sin.

"I talked with a man, I should judge past 70 years, today, but his mind was so clouded by responses in new ventures, that I am confident my appeal did not register. "The man who wards off the appeal of Christ with the promise of 'by and by' will give attention to this matter' is entrenching himself against God's favors. The promise of 'by and by' is the thief of now, and the foundation for never. "To be on the Lord's side is to renounce and repudiate sin. It is a coming out from among the idolaters. To be with Christ means the elimination of evil in one's life. "The text demands a declaration of choice—'Who is on the Lord's side—what is your answer?' The issue of choosing sides resolves itself to Christ and salvation versus self-pleasing, with the soul perils consequent upon being on the wrong side. Disaster is directly in the path of him who heeds not the call of God. "If you respond to the challenge, as did the sons of Levi, you will be spared the humiliation of utter failure and remorse. Failure is the tragedy with which the trail of time is strewn. Every failure is traceable to moral obliquity. Look behind the scenes of every dark tragedy; search the failure of every blighted Eden, and you will find the serpent to be a moral overthrow; whether it be with men or nations."

Four responded to the invitation to embrace Christ as their personal saviour.

He had not been ill, and death was apparently due to heart trouble.

13 CARS OF ROGUE TURKEYS GOING TO MARKET IN 'FRISCO

Thirteen express cars of Rogue River valley turkeys, containing approximately 290,000 pounds of fowl, including a car scheduled to be dispatched tonight, have been shipped since Friday to the San Francisco market, for the Thanksgiving trade.

A special of eight Railway Agency Express cars went south Saturday night, three more were routed Friday night, one Sunday, and one is being made ready for tonight. The bulk of the turkeys came from this district, with two cars from Grants Pass and one from the Rogue River district. The Applegate district consignment was placed in the Rogue River car.

C. C. Graves, route agent of the Railway Express agency, said today that the Thanksgiving turkey shipments from this district were between 15,000 and 20,000 pounds in excess of last year. The official said the peak of the Thanksgiving shipments had been reached, though there might be smaller shipments Tuesday and Wednesday. Another cooperative pool shipment of turkeys is scheduled to be made December 8. County Agent Robert G. Fowler said this morning. He said the price was "bettering." Many of the turkey raisers are holding their birds for Christmas and New Year shipments. Fowler estimated the turkey crop for this year at 600,000 pounds. This means that more than half the fowls have been shipped.

The turkeys, both in quality and size, are better than last year.
