Kay Francis On Rialto Bill

Supported by an imposing cast, Leslie Howard and Kay Francis will be shown at the Rialto theater, starting tomorrow in "British Agent," a story of dangerous love set against the thrilling background of the Russian Soviet revolution.

With Howard playing the part of Stephen Locke, "official non-official agent" of the powers trying to stop the revolution, and Kay Francis, as Elena, flaming exponent of the Red cause he tries so hard to defeat, the picture takes on added significance as the two fall in love, moves rapidly on to a thrilling climax as the girl, true to her cause, betrays the man she loves. The reluctant excitement as the Reds take power makes the ending of the story full of thrilling suspense.

Included in the cast are William Gorgan, Philip Reed, Irving Pichel.
