laries of the senior high school, junior high school, Hudson's "What-Not," the Ivy Street market, the Bungalow store, Medford Shoe Repair Shop, the Knights of Pythias hall, the West Side Pharmacy, Montgomery Ward store, on two occasions, and the Christian church. In the Christian church burglary, the communion wine was drunk, the statement says.

The district attorney informed the court that Stringer's record started as a boy, and includes two reform school terms.

Leonard Clark, 28, companion of Stringer, in the Mann store robbery, who entered a plea of guilty, was granted a temporary suspended sentence with the proviso, "you get work, when you can, and apply yourself diligently to it, pay your parents for board," and "indulge in self-help efforts."

The district attorney recommended that Clark be "regulated in the use of his parents' auto, which he drives when he feels like it."

The court told Clark, "I do not like your attitude. The suspended sentence is given with the understanding it can be revoked, and sentence passed, whenever the court receives an unfavorable report on your conduct."

Bluelah Wilcox, 18, and Stanley Howard, 21, charged with receiving stolen goods, in connection with the Mann store robbery, were each granted suspended sentences. Both entered guilty pleas. Both are first offenders.

The court declared the Wilcox girl "is more to be pitied than censured," and that both "were under the dominating influence of Stringer."

John A. Ferri spoke in behalf of Clark, saying "I know his parents well, and the young man is a good worker when he can get employment."

Attorney E. E. Kelly spoke in behalf of Miss Wilcox, Clark and Howard, urging closely regulated suspended sentences.

Craterian's New Musical Show Is Hit With Crowds

Much advance publicity for "One Night of Love," which opened yesterday at the Craterian theater, has led everyone into expecting something exceptional. And that is what "One Night of Love" is.

Not only does it introduce a new personality in the person of Grace Moore, but a radiant, sparkling personality with a glorious voice that transcends anything ever heard on the screen before.

It's so simple it's a wonder no one thought of it before. It's the story of an adventurous American girl, easy to look at, in a foreign land. You admire her courage and sympathy with her ambition. Her efforts to train her lovely voice in Italy give you intriguing glimpses of that romantic country. You see her practicing in a most delightful Italian "tin-pau alley"—"ettagio."
