

PLANS LAID FOR NURSERY SCHOOL OPENING MONDAY

Miss Luella Skaffe of Silverton, Ore., and Miss May Bonham of Phoenix, in charge of the nursery school which will open in Medford next Monday, met with heads of several of the city's civic and teachers' organizations Wednesday to outline final details of the school.

Representatives of the city's P. T. A. societies, of the American Legion, the Lions club and the county relief committee were present and will combine with leaders of various other organizations in promoting a campaign to collect equipment for the school. Miss Skaffe, director, will be in charge, with Miss Bonham as her assistant.

The school will be opened at temporary headquarters at Junior high, with an enrollment of six children from 2 to 4 years of age. The enrollment will grow to 10 or 12 the second week, and the school will finally attain a maximum attendance of 25.

Medford Lions club will furnish toys for the school, which is being sponsored through the co-operation of many of the city's organizations. A nursery school council has been tentatively appointed to supervise the work carried on by Misses Skaffe and Bonham, who were employed for the project as relief teachers, through the Jackson county relief committee.

Children of relief families will attend for six hours daily, and will be cared for and instructed in habit forming. The plan has been given trials in many parts of the state, according to those in charge, and has met with success.

SALEM, Dec. 13.—(AP)—Two hundred and seventy previously unemployed teachers are now teaching nursery schools and literacy, vocational and general education classes under the emergency education program. Charles A. Howard, superintendent of public instruction, announced today.

Approximately 6000 adults are attending the 374 educational classes being conducted in all but two counties in the state, Howard stated. City and county school superintendents select the unemployed teachers and organize the classes in their respective districts. New classes were being organized as fast as the demand arose and where unemployed and competent teachers were available.

CODDING TO SEEK CHANGES IN LAWS ON SYNDICALISM

At the state convention of Oregon district attorneys, District Attorney George A. Coddling of Jackson county will propose a resolution asking that the Oregon criminal syndicalism law revert back to its original form before changed by the legislature at its 1933 session. The meet will be held in Portland, December 20, 21 and 22.

The last legislative session revised the criminal syndicalism law until law enforcing agencies claim it lost much of its force. A movement, backed by Portland interests, is now under way to have the syndicalism law stricken from the statutes. One of the grounds advanced is that it infringes on the constitutional rights of free speech and free press.

Prosecutions under the criminal syndicalism law have been few, less than half a dozen being tried.

The past six months there have been two convictions—one involving Dirk DeJonge, Portland communist candidate for mayor at the last election. DeJonge was sentenced to seven years in state prison. The other conviction was directed against Kyle Pugh, found guilty by a Jackson county jury last Saturday and sentenced to a five-year term. Notice of appeal to the supreme court has been served in both cases.

Pugh was found guilty of the sale, possession, distribution and public display of communistic literature in this county last September.

Elks Lodge Cat Back In Temple

The Elks' lodge cat—"Tiger"—that disappeared from the temple last Sunday evening was returned yesterday by a mail man who found the cat on West Jackson street. "Tiger," after eating a supper of hamburger and cream, showed signs of running away again, so was locked up in a closet until he again becomes reconciled to his regular home.

The disappearance of the pet caused considerable distress among the members. His last vanishment was the second within the month.

The proof is in the wear. Buy your HOSE at Ethelwyn B. Hoffmann's. The annual loss from moth destruction in the United States is estimated to be about $100,000,000.
