ASHLAND, Dec. 18.—(Sp.)—Lithia springs property, formerly owned by the Pompadour Mineral Springs company and now owned by the Citizens Bank of Ashland is being urged by the Ashland Business Men's association.

Negotiations are at a standstill after an offer of $100 for an option was refused Monday. Today has been set as a deadline for taking up the option.

It is understood that the state banking department is holding out for $1000 as the option figure, due to the fact that other interests, reputedly from Medford, are negotiating for the property.

The city council is unwilling to pay such an amount for the option, due to evident opposition noted among Ashland citizens, and if the option is taken up within the prescribed time limit, the initiative must come from the business men, state city officials. Several members of the business men's association have signified their willingness to underwrite the amount of the option.

The city council will handle further negotiations which will be reported on at the regular meeting tonight. If the option is secured, a general election will be held and voters will decide whether or not the purchase shall take place.

Paramount among the arguments for purchase is the preservation of the investment already in lithia water, and the advertising value derived, much of which would be lost if other interests secured control.

The property would be leased to private hands, if owned by Ashland, and the industrial value of the springs, much larger than the spring now used, would be realized, state proponents of the plan. Possibilities of a sanitarium, bottled water and gas, and the manufacture of dry ice are some of the advantages claimed.

Opponents claim that in the more than twenty years of lithia spring ownership, no real development has taken place and that the investment has not been justified.

The mortgage on the property, when owned by the Pompadour company and managed by President Harry Silver, was for $15,000. It was acquired by the Citizens' bank, now in process of liquidation, by sheriff's sale.

MISSIONARY PAIR NOT DEAD IN VAIN ASSERT PARENTS

'Blood of the Martyr Is Seed of the Church,' Says Cleric Father of Victim Chinese Bandits' Wrath

TSINAN, (Shantung Province, China, Dec. 18.—(AP)—The parents of Mrs. J. C. Stiam, who with her husband, was executed by Chinese bandits, expressed the conviction today that the young missionary couple "did not die in vain."

"The blood of the martyr is the seed of the church," said Dr. C. E. Scott, the father, himself a missionary representing the Second Congressional church of Holyoke, Mass.

Shortly afterward the Scotts left for Wuhu, Anhwei province, to get their three-month-old granddaughter, Helen Priscilla Stiam, who almost miraculously escaped the fate of her parents. A Chinese Christian missionary found her in a deserted house and cared for her until she could be taken to Wuhu.

"If we could hear our beloved children speak we know from their convictions they would praise God because he counted them worthy to suffer for the sake of Jesus Christ," Dr. Scott commented.

Dr. Scott recalled the enthusiastic manner in which the Stams undertook their mission work in the lonely mountainous area of southern Anhwei province. "Their parents invited them to go to God and radiant in their love to their savior and to each other," he asserted.

"Since hearing of their capture our constant prayers have been that whether by costly sacrifice in death or deliverance, God would be glorified and His will be done."

Death by Sword. A dispatch from Wuhu revealed the Stams were executed by swords in the ancient Chinese manner. A native eyewitness said the night before the execution the Stams were tightly bound with cord and not permitted to lie down.

The following day, he continued, their outer clothing was stripped from them and they were marched through the streets of the village of Minkow, while their captors invited the public to see the foreigners killed.

Before the executions the brigands explained the missionaries were aiding the Nanking government, helping it to build roads, and must die. Several residents in being made to recover the Americans' bodies. Missionaries here are caring for little Helen until her grandparents arrive.

As a contribution to the modernization program the services of the kitchen planning section of General Electric Institute have been made available without charge to home owners, real estate operators, apartment house owners, architects and builders, or to anyone contemplating remodeling and improving existing homes under the provisions of the new housing act. It was announced today by J. C. Thompson, division manager of the California Edison Power company, General Electric distributors here.

"With the government insuring the loans which building owners may make of financial institutions," he said, "we can expect a big revival in the building trades and undoubtedly many who long have wanted an all-electric kitchen will take advantage of the
