BRILLIANT CHRISTMAS TREE IN HOTEL LOBBY DECORATED BY WATSON

Members of all Elks lodges in southern Oregon and their guests have been invited to attend the annual Elks Christmas tree celebration tonight at the temple, where gifts and provisions obtained for distribution to needy families throughout the valley.

The Christmas tree celebration comes as one of the biggest parties of the year, in which a feed and beer is to be served. It will be followed after Christmas with the annual New Year's eve ball, to be held at the temple ballroom. Through a typographical error, it was stated in yesterday's Mail Tribune that dancing would begin at 1 o'clock instead of 10 o'clock, the correct time. Merle Carlson and his Columbia recording orchestra has been secured for the dance.

The annual Christmas pageant by the Christian church Bible school will be presented Friday at 7:30 p. m. A very fine pageant has been prepared. Besides the characterizations, the dancing and lighting effects add a great deal in making old Biblical Christmas scenes realistic.

The pageant is climaxed in the form of a white gift Christmas. The public is cordially invited.

POLICE TO EYE AUTO LICENSES

SALEM, Dec. 20.—(AP)—Anyone driving an automobile after January 1 with 1934 license plates will not be looked upon with favor by Charles P. Pray, superintendent of state police, and his men, who declared today that the law providing for the display of current license plates would be strictly enforced.

Pray said members of the state police force would be placed at strategic positions along the state highways January 1, to check all motor vehicles.

"The state police department has no alternative than to enforce this law," he stated.

It was reported at the state department today that approximately 60,000 new licenses had been issued. Those who are unable to produce their permits at the regular stations in Portland and Salem may get temporary license tags from county sheriffs by the payment of 25 cents more than the regular price.

TICKETS GO FAST FOR LEGION SHOW ON FRIDAY NIGHT

With ticket sales indicating a full house tomorrow night at Oriental Gardens, where the American Legion show, "Ten Nights in a Barroom" is to be presented, and with the cast of Ashland Legionnaires putting the finishing touches on their 1934 "dramatic" efforts in southern Oregon who plans to attend is assured of an evening of merriment and good old days.

Lee Carlock, chairman of the ticket sales committee, has lead his corps of salesmen over the top, he reports, in getting the interest of the public in this comically-serious performance, and says that there will be a capacity crowd at the Gardens.

The Ashland players are brushing up their stove pipe hats and preparing out their tight-legged trousers in anticipation of putting the play over even better than at the Ashland armory last Thanksgiving. Although mistakes all go to add to the comedy, the cast expects to benefit greatly by their general experience in the first performance.

Morris Leonard, special chairman, has called a meeting of chairmen of all committees this evening at 8:00 o'clock at the Leonard Electric Co. in the Holly theater building, to make final arrangements for the production.

The Oriental Gardens will be transformed into a last century music parlor this evening and tomorrow, so that when the curtain goes up on the many scenes the audience will feel as perfectly at home as though they were seeing the real thing.

The auxiliary is sponsoring concessions for the evening, with the exception of the beer booth, which is to be managed by the men. Real singing waiters will sell peanuts, popcorn and candy in the audience, as well as entertain with all the old favorite tunes. The seating arrangement will be made so that members of the audience may see and hear everything that goes on behind the footlights.

The play itself is a true version of "Ten Nights in a Barroom," acted with the 1880 script, but improved upon with the modern viewpoint of the actors on how some of the lines should be read. It is to be played exactly as it was in the days of the present generation acclaimed as one of the masterpieces of the 19th century. Although supposed to be realistically interpreted, names of the characters themselves are fictitious, which puts an end to all seriousness.

EGGS ADVANCE PENNY IN PORTLAND MARKET

PORTLAND, Dec. 20.—(AP)—An advance of 1c in the price of eggs was made during the late season of the produce exchange. The advance was for all offerings. Receipts are showing a slight increase and continue to indicate a greater total volume for the year, compared with 1933.

Trade in the butter market was being fairly well maintained at current prices, although there continued quite a difference of opinion among distributive interests. Butterfat values were being held.
