Grandson Local People Acting In Broadway Success

Medford friends of Richard Drake Seymour, grandson of Mr. and Mrs. J. G. McNamara of West Fourth street, are gratified to learn that the young actor is enjoying continued success on Broadway. According to word received here he was to open in a new show, "Fools Rush In," at the Vanderbilt theater Christmas night. The production, under direction of Guthrie McClintic, husband of Katharine Cornell, includes a cast of younger actors who appeared last season with great success in "New Faces," which enjoyed almost a year's run.

Later this year Seymour is to appear with Miss Cornell in a drama written for her by a young European playwright. Seymour also expects to go to London this fall to appear in a new Noel Coward play.

New York, during the holidays, was an exceedingly gay place, most of the depression gloom having disappeared, according to Seymour, who expressed a desire to return to Medford, where he formerly lived, to enjoy the winter sports of which he was particularly fond.
