Mesdames Rickett, Franco Entertain Temple Members

On Monday evening Mrs. J. D. Rickett of Capitol Hill and Mrs. T. P. Franco of Ashland were joint hostesses to members of Zuleima Temple Patrol and ladies in waiting at the home of Mrs. Rickett. Dessert lunch was served upon the arrival of the guests and the table decorations consisted of a replica of the temple in season. Two rows of dolls represented the patrol and each officer's station was marked with a doll dressed in the various colors of the order. A small toy piano with the musician seated occupied one corner of the table and each detail was carried out.

As a surprise to Mrs. Franco on the occasion of her birthday a large birthday cake with the appropriate number of candles was placed on the table followed by a basket of gifts.

The evening was spent socially, the patrol having their business meeting and making plans for the luncheon which they will serve next Saturday preceding the Daughters of the Nile meeting.

Those seated at this unique table were Mesdames: O. D. Frazier, Ralph Woodford, Don Newbury, L. P. Wilcox, John Lawrence, E. H. Hedrick, A. P. Butler, Loda Early, Jack Porter, Robt. D. Coe, H. T. Hubbard, R. W. Stearns, Dade Terrett, Chas. L. Woods, E. W. Spalding, Grants Pass, H. C. Sneed of Ashland and the hostesses, Miss Roca Franco and Mrs. Cramer of Ashland served.

COURTHOUSE FIRED BY MOB

This unusual picture shows the blazing top story of the Medford county courthouse at Shelbyville, Tenn., shortly after it had been set fire by a mob attempting to get possession of a negro prisoner on trial for assaulting a white girl. Two men were killed in the rioting, and loss by the courthouse fire was estimated at $150,000. (Associated Press Photo)

Bliton, Tribune's "Dad" Came Here 42 Years Ago

Just 42 years ago Monday, A. S. Bliton purchased the Southern Oregon Mail, the newspaper which is now The Mail Tribune, after coming all the way from North Dakota to get to Medford. Bliton arrived on Sunday, January 8, 1893, and had to wait until business opened the next day before he could effect the transfer.

After purchasing the paper, the new editor decided to change the name, believing that "Southern Oregon Mail" took in too much territory. The name was changed to "Medford Mail," and publication started. The office was on the second floor of a frame building which stood where the Craterian theater now is.

The circulation at that time was only 500, not too bad when it is made known that the population was less than a thousand, but the new editor was an "independent," politically speaking, and the rest of the town was predominately Republican and Democratic, and the subscriptions promptly fell off to a mere 250.

Nothing daunted, the editor launched further campaigns, quelling fights between the "east side" and the "west side," factions composed of those living on opposite sides of the Southern Pacific tracks. (The S. P. depot stood in the middle of 7th street, which is now Main street.)

Medford was prosperous at that time, although tiny, and the paper soon began to prosper also under the new head, shooting up so that within 18 months it boasted 1500 subscriptions.

Reminiscing today, Bliton stated that at that time there was not a single paved street in the town. The residential section as we now know it was undreamed of, and most of the buildings were of frame construction.

In 1899, however, the company moved across the street into the brick building now occupied by the Buster Brown shoe store, and were forced, according to Bliton, to pay the exorbitantly high rent of $15 a month! This deplorable condition went on for 10 years, at the end of which time the landlord built a new brick building, 50x50 feet, and hiked the rent even higher, this time sending it towering to $16 a month! Mr. Bliton sold out in 1909 to George Putnam, now publishing the Salem Capital Journal. The Medford Mail was by that time a daily, with a circulation of 2700.

The equipment used in that old plant was of the best, one of the job presses still being in use in the Mail Tribune job department, and still showing no signs of wear.

A. F. Stennett, foreman of the Tribune back shop at the present time, and A. E. Powell, publisher of the Central Point American, were both employed by Bliton on the old paper.

HOME AGENT OFFERS AID ON FAMILY MENU AND TABLE SERVICE

A new project in menu planning and table service for Jackson county home extension units was started in the county last Friday at the Eagle Point extension unit, by Mabel C. Mack, county home demonstration agent, she announced today.

The purpose of the project is to aid homemakers in planning adequate and attractive menus for family meals and simple entertaining, and to give information and practice in table setting and service. The welfare and happiness of the family are more directly dependent upon the planning and preparation of the daily meals than any other part of the homemaker's work. In planning the menus for the family, health, economy, labor, availability of supplies, variety and attractiveness, age and needs of members of the family are considered.

There are two meetings in the project. Sessions are held from 10 a. m. to 3:30 p. m. All homemakers of the community are invited to attend home extension unit meetings to be held this week as follows:

Rogue River, January 8, at the home of Mrs. Effie Birdseye.

Trail, at the home of Mrs. Eva Segeesman.

Griffin creek, at the home of Mrs. Lottie Hurd.

Radio Study clubs will meet Wednesday, January 9, at 1:30 p. m., the subject for the talk being "How a Ten-Year-Old Escapes Reality."

11 Killed When Plane Hits Army

KARACHI, India, Jan. 9. — (P) — Eleven Indian soldiers were killed and 11 others seriously injured today when an airplane of the Indian air force crashed into troops during maneuvers near the Hubb river today.

The pilot, Flying Officer H. C. Sear, and his observer were slightly injured. The plane was wrecked.

SNOWMEN LACK QUORUM: ELECTION IS POSTPONED

Because only a few members of Rogue Snowmen, Medford ski club attended the meeting Monday night at the chamber of commerce, officers were not elected and no business was discussed, as well as being planned.

President Glen Fabrick said today that if the membership becomes "skittish," as it should, within the next two weeks, a meeting will probably be held at Russell's place on the Sixtyfours, where the club built several trails last year.

Ex-Spanish Rulers Plan Separation Is Paris Report

PARIS, Jan. 9. — (P) — Spanish royalties here said today an "amicable separation" between former King Alfonso and Queen Victoria is being arranged in London.

Although all talk of an annulment of the marriage has been dropped, due to the prominence of the pair, the royalties asserted, the papers are now being drafted for a legal separation providing for a division of property.

According to the royalties, the queen wants a legal separation because Alfonso's expenses are vastly greater than hers, and she desires to preserve her fortune.

Ban On Nudists New York's Plan

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 9. — (P) — An anti-nudist bill is before the New York legislature.

Senator John T. McCall, New York Democrat, introduced a bill last night making personal exposure "in the presence of two or more members of the opposite sex . . . also exposed," a misdemeanor.

KIDS WAIT COMING OF SHRINE CIRCUS

Circus time is drawing near, and Medford children are anxiously awaiting the opening day of the gigantic Shrine circus, which will be at the Medford Armory for one week, beginning January 14. That day will feature a matinee for the kids, and every one of them in town is talking about it.

The circus itself is designed, however, to appeal to everyone, and should do just that, according to reports received from other points which it has been presented. There are 15 headline acts, all of the best quality, and include every kind of circus performance.

After each evening performance there will be a dance at the Armory, and large crowds will be entertained, advance sale of tickets indicates.

Tickets may be purchased from any Shriner, or at the downtown office of the committee in charge, which is in the Sparta building.
