KINGFISH TRIES HAND AS WRITER CAMPAIGN SONGS

Dictator Appears in New York to Seek Publisher— Says 'Oscar' Allen Not to Quit Governor's Chair

NEW YORK, Jan. 11.—(AP)—Huey Long, who has turned song writer, is in town looking for a publisher.

Louisiana outspoken senator and "dictator" breezed into New York yesterday looking for Lou Irwin, "who knows a lot of publishers."
Long didn't seem to be worried about the threatened march of Louisiana's "squire dealers" on the state capitol unless the senator's dictatorship is ended by the legislature.
"They ain't going to march anywhere," he shouted. "If they had a horse and buggy they might ride. They're too lazy to walk."
"That gang down there changes its name every week. Now they are calling it the square deal."
Pleased With State
"They're a lot of defeated candidates who have been beaten so many times I quit counting. They ain't going to do nothing down there. I'm mighty well pleased with conditions in Louisiana. I wish the rest of the country was in as good shape. If it was we could go ahead."
Concerning reports Gov. O. K. Allen would resign because of ill health, Huey said:
"Oscar ain't going to quit. He ain't sick. He's gone hunting. I say he ain't going to resign nothing until he gets a better job and there ain't any open down there right now."
The senator said his song is called "Every Man a King" and that it is of a half dozen others he is going to use in his "share the wealth" campaign. The words were written by Long himself and the music was composed one morning about 5 o'clock with Castra Carza, "my bandmaster at Louisiana State university."

Huey Humming
"Castra was sitting at a piano and I was at a table humming," he said. "He'd play a bar and then I'd hum a line and that's the way it got put together."
While he is here he is going to look into some legal matters connected with a suit against a utility company he is handling in Louisiana.
The Kingfish said his "share-the-wealth" movement is "growing by leaps and bounds."

FASHINGTON, Jan. 11.—(AP)—Here's the song that Senator Huey Long, the "Kingfish," would like for a time—as the national anthem.
Under the title of "Every Man a King," it goes:
"Why weep or slumber, America? Land of brave and true, With castles, clothing and food for all,

Ravenous Wolves Invade Villages During Blizzards

BUCHARREST, Rumania, Jan. 11.—(AP)—Fierce blizzards and bitter cold held almost all Rumania in their grip today.
Unprecedented low temperatures prevailing for the past few days have driven packs of hunger-maddened wolves from the mountains and forests into rural towns.

One village near Buzita was attacked by 40 of the ravenous beasts and peasants, unable to drive them away, were compelled to lock themselves in their houses.
A ten-year old girl was reported to have been torn to pieces.
One peasant was attacked by wolves on his way home on a sledge drawn by two horses. He sought refuge in a tree where he was found frozen to death the next day. All but the bones of his horses had been devoured.

INCENDIARY CASE IN HANDS OF JURY THIS AFTERNOON

High would not have burned the barn, since he knew that the insurance was not collectible, and since he had neither a title to the property, nor was he in possession of it at the time of the fire, but that Holland, who was supposed to be a partner in the purchase of the place, along with Geo. High, was ignorant of those conditions, and having a half interest in the insurance, set the blaze.
Roberts pointed out that the contradiction of former witnesses by Mrs. High, mother of the defendants, must have been the truth, considering the case in the light of the fact that the lady, who is not well, would not lie for any reason, since she knows that her days are numbered.
When the numerous days of the aged and infirm mother was mentioned by Roberts, both of the defendants were observed to blink rapidly to keep back tears, and the lips of both quivered.
In his opening remarks on the final statement of the state's case, District Attorney Coddling, in answer to defense charges against the character of the state's chief witness had this to say:
"Joe Holland is no playmate of the state, George High picked him for a friend, and a partner in the enterprise, we didn't. We take the evidence as we find it."
Says Barn Insured
A point stressed for the state by Coddling, was the statement that the barn was insured, and that High had a title to it, and was in possession of it, at the time of the fire. He produced a document, signed by George High to this effect, creating some stir at the defense table.

A clash between Attorneys Coddling and Roberts, when Coddling, in answer to defense charges that the state had made no attempt to bring Theron "Red" Martin (indicted jointly with George and "Babe" High) to this city for trial, stated that he had no power to bring Martin to this city and force him to trial. Roberts immediately leaped to his feet, and objected violently, asking Judge Norton to have the remark removed from the record.
A verbal battle ensued between the two, in which Roberts stated, and proved, that Martin was on the same indictment, and claiming that the state could have forced him here to stand trial with the Highs.
Judge Norton explained that any one of the three on the indictment had the right to demand a separate trial, and the incident was cleared up.
Judge Norton was to give his instructions to the jury, beginning at 1:30 this afternoon, after which the case was to go to the jury.
